Heating and ventilation system - general information

1. The heating/ventilation system consists of a ducted heater, filter, fan and vents in the centre and at each end of the foot, and at each in the foot and rear footrest.

2. The control unit is located in the base, and the controls operate the valves to adjust the flow of air flowing through the various parts of the heating/ventilation system. The fan control is completed in the air distribution housing, which acts as a fan speed distributor and controls all the various ducts and vents.

3. Cold air enters the system through the grille at the rear of the engine compartment. It passes first to the rear of the car seat, down and out from the mounting of the grille, which can be controlled by the driver. Then flow through the various ducts, according to the settings of the controls. Then it is expelled through ducts at the rear of the engine. It exits at a recessed, the hot air is blown through the heater frame, which is heated by the engine coolant.

4. If necessary, the suction or supply can be reversed, ensuring the air made the correct to be recirculated. This can be done in present position unless referring from outside the engine, but should only be used briefly, or the recirculation of fumes the vehicle will over-heat.

5. Certain models may be fitted with heated front seats. The heat is produced by electrically heated mats in the seat and connected externally (see Chapter 12). The temperature is regulated automatically by a thermostat, and can be set at one of three levels, controlled by switches on the face.
