Learning for Life Jason Wingard, Michelle LAPOINTE, 2015-09-16

Today's global knowledge economy requires individuals and companies alike to quickly adapt to new tools and strategies To remain competitive both must continually seek out the latest advancements and developments and upgrade their skillsets accordingly

In the United States however support for ongoing education lags far behind other developed nations creating a crippling skills gap between the workforce and industries in the US and its global competitors

In a country that has been multiple steps ahead of everyone else since its birth how did this happen Why are other countries previously inferior when it came to technological advancements suddenly faring markedly better What keeps our nation's vast network of corporate training workforce development and K 12 and college education so fragmented and inefficient

In the tells it like it is Learning for Life readers will learn about Why America's existing educational models are failing employees and employers The shift in content knowledge toward new ways of thinking and working Policies and programs that are working in the US and abroad Recommendations for overhauling our education and training infrastructure and building partnerships between providers and employers

The stakes are too important for America to continue falling behind in its education But the good news is the pathways to get us back to the top are there ahead of us Learning for Life points the way forward
