Kushner, 2025-05-26 This book represents the third in a series of Springer textbooks on Lifestyle Medicine by Dr Mechanick and Dr Kushner The first book focused on theory and practice concepts The second book focused on implementation with a specific tactic of building a lifestyle medicine center This third book focuses on scientific evidence to close research gaps knowledge gaps and practice gaps The general intent is to imbue the field of lifestyle medicine with scientific evidence The other intent is to continue advancing a culture of preventive care for chronic disease using lifestyle medicine but again through a tactic of emphasizing science evidence and critical thinking Lifestyle Medicine Closing Research Practice and Knowledge Gaps is organized into three sections In the first section driver based chronic disease models and other elements that pertain to lifestyle medicine are explored in terms of current levels of scientific substantiation In the second section educational modalities are presented that can improve awareness of scientific and experiential knowledge by healthcare professionals Topics include innovative teaching models web based activities training and accreditation programs and certification exams In the third section a variety of clinical scenarios are presented to highlight practice gaps implementation issues where there is inadequate clinical action despite an awareness of the pertinent knowledge The topics span critical domains that must be addressed so that lifestyle medicine can lead to favorable outcomes in people and populations at risk These domains include alcohol and substance abuse colitis brain health environmental risk pharmacotherapy de escalation routine change socioeconomics transculturalization advanced analytics home cardiac rehabilitation digital twin technology and a highly referenced discussion of the lifestyle medicine ecosystem and infrastructure Care is taken to provide not only theoretical foundations but also case studies where appropriate to emphasize critical aspects In conclusion this third book on Lifestyle Medicine will complement the previous two Springer books and define a compendium of resources necessary for anyone interested in this field

Infertility and Endometriosis Francesca de Michele, Diego Raimondo, Simone Ferrero, 2025-12-01 Endometriosis is a highly prevalent disease among women of reproductive age and is often associated with infertility The prevalence of endometriosis within the general population is estimated to range from 0.8% to 6% However studies have shown a higher prevalence in women experiencing issues of infertility or subfertility with rates reaching approximately 20-50% Endometriosis may exist in various forms and so far no definitive correlation has been established between the invasiveness of these different forms and the extent of infertility Many efforts have been made to define the correlation between endometriosis and subfertility This includes the development of surgical clinical scores and classifications to better understand the condition Moreover recent advancements in molecular research have been aimed at clarifying the aetiopathogenesis of the disease and the cellular difference between healthy women and the different forms of endometriosis The progress made up to now can identify some risk factors for subfertility in endometriotic patients dyspareunia and chronic pelvic pain extensive disease with pelvic adhesions and tubal occlusion chronic peritoneal inflammation altered tubal motility The challenge of the gynaecologist today is to understand when a surgical intervention is necessary and when it is not how to optimize the research of pregnancy even in a context of pelvic pain and to avoid unnecessary or late recourse to the assisted reproductive techniques A strict collaboration between surgeons researchers and fertility experts is necessary to better understand the mechanisms underlying the subfertility linked to the endometriosis and tailor the treatment This collection aims to collect Original Research Articles and Reviews Amongst other accepted article types which will help expand our understanding of Endometriosis and infertility Relevant topics include but are not limited to Epidemiology of endometriosis Current treatment of endometriosis Molecular basis in defining endometriosis Infertility issues in endometriotic patients Surgery if when and where New treatments and research issues

Body & Soul,2010 The Role of Nutritional Strategies in the Regulation of Gut Microbiota and Host Immune System Li Wang,Caihong Hu,Ming Fan,2024-12-17 The gut microbiota not only plays important roles in many metabolic pathways but it also provides the host with a variety of functions that promote immune homeostasis immune responses and prevent pathogen colonization The gut microbiota as well as their metabolites and components are required for immune homeostasis and influence host susceptibility to a wide range of immune mediated diseases and disorders The composition of the gut microbiota influences immune system development and modulates immune mediators which in turn affects the function of the intestinal barrier To this end This Research Topic aims to present and discuss the most recent evidence on the role of nutritional strategies in regulating gut microbiota and host immune system which will assist in understanding how nutritional strategies can promote immunity homeostasis and intestinal barrier function via the gut microbiota

Missmer,Jayashri Kulkarni,Vassiliki Benetou,Marianne Vidler,Chelsea Morroni,2023-02-07 As a result of the Coronavirus disease COVID 19 pandemic the world is facing one of the greatest challenges we have experienced in over a century The economic consequences for society at large are potentially catastrophic The health and social care sectors have reacted by providing emergency care on an unprecedented scale while the scientific community has focused on developing new treatments and a vaccine to prevent future waves of the pandemic Evidence is emerging to suggest that certain conditions such as obesity and hypertension predispose some individuals to a worse outcome if they become infected and that women may be less likely to die from COVID 19 than men It is also currently believed that pregnant women are at no greater risk than the general population There is an urgent need to determine whether these early observations are correct Furthermore we need to be sure that pregnancy outcomes are not affected by COVID 19 and that SARS CoV 2 is not transmitted to the fetus during pregnancy or labour nor to the infant through breast milk There are so many questions that need to be answered to optimise care avoid harm reduce anxiety amongst women and their families and inform health professionals and policymakers We also need to understand the unintended consequences of the global lockdown on women s health in general For example have rates of domestic violence risen to what extent has women s mental health been affected and have women successfully adapted or devised new coping mechanisms have women been denied access to gynaecological treatments during the lockdown including safe abortion and if so with what impact on their health and wellbeing has the female work force suffered disproportionately in economic terms have national and international recommendations and policies been sufficiently gender neutral have breastfeeding rates been adversely affected will COVID 19 make attainment of the UN SDGs more difficult etc In keeping with the Scope Mission of Frontiers in Global Women s Health this Research Topic aims to provide a multi disciplinary platform to answer important COVID 19 related questions that specifically impact upon women s health and wellbeing particular in resource poor settings The Topic Editors welcome a broad range of contributions including Original Research Reviews Commentaries Study Protocols and Systematic Reviews We would like to acknowledge Dr Nathalie MacDermott and Dr Rhiannon George Carey who have acted as coordinators and have contributed to the preparation of the proposal for this Research Topic Given the exceptional nature of the COVID 19 situation Frontiers is waiving all article publishing charges for COVID 19 related research in this Research Topic Please note that manuscripts must be submitted by the deadline of December 31st
