

HENRY II

- Henry II was born in France in 1133 as a great grandson of William the Conqueror.
- Although Henry II's grandfather, King Henry I, married his daughter Matilda to rule England, William the Conqueror's other grandson, Stephen, took the throne.

- Matilda fought with Stephen for 19 years until in 1153 it was agreed that upon his death Henry would take the throne.
- In addition to becoming King, Henry would also inherit such territories as Normandy, Brittany and Aquitaine upon Stephen's death in 1154.
- Whilst some of the earlier Norman kings had negligible interest in conquering Ireland due to the strong Irish and the country's lack of English; however, after being asked for help by the leader of London (King Dennis), Henry and his knights saw the opportunity to seize land whilst they were there helping him.
- Following Dennis's death in 1171, a large number of English knights and barons decided to capture certain regions of Ireland, and it was only a few years later they controlled the land more than the Irish themselves.

- Henry II was now viewed as the 'Sikrioid' by the English settlers and Irish leaders in Ireland.
- He used pre-existing fortifications to his advantage and built new ones.
- Many investors aided the development of Dublin as a centre of trade and commerce.

During Henry II's reign, what we now call France was divided into a number of areas, all with different rulers. France itself was one of these areas, and was a big and powerful region ruled by King Louis VII. He often conspired with Henry, and when Henry's own sons rebelled against him in 1173, Louis joined in.

- As Henry II owned so much land, he would often travel back and forth across the English channel to defend his territories and ensure they were not under threat.
