History Of Strength Of Materials Timoshenko :

History of Strength of Materials Stephen Timoshenko, 1983-01-01 Strength of materials is that branch of engineering concerned with the deformation and disruption of solids when forces other than changes in position or equilibrium are acting upon them The development of our understanding of the strength of materials has enabled engineers to establish the forces which can safely be imposed on structure or components or to choose materials appropriate to the necessary dimensions of structures and components which have to withstand given loads without suffering effects deleterious to their proper functioning This excellent historical survey of the strength of materials with many references to the theories of elasticity and structures is based on an extensive series of lectures delivered by the author at Stanford University Palo Alto California Timoshenko explores the early roots of the discipline from the great monuments and pyramids of ancient Egypt through the temples roads and fortifications of ancient Greece and Rome The author fixes the formal beginning of the modern science of the strength of materials with the publications of Galileo s book Two Sciences and traces the rise and development as well as industrial and commercial applications of the fledgling science from the seventeenth century through the twentieth century Timoshenko fleshes out the bare bones of mathematical theory with lucid demonstrations of important equations and brief biographies of highly influential mathematicians including Euler Lagrange Navier Thomas Young Saint Venant Franz Neumann Maxwell Kelvin Rayleigh Klein Prandtl and many others These theories equations and biographies are further enhanced by clear discussions of the development of engineering and engineering education in Italy France Germany England and elsewhere 245 figures

The History of the Theory of Structures Karl-Eugen Kurrer, 2012-01-09 This book traces the evolution of theory of structures and strength of materials the development of the geometrical thinking of the Renaissance to become the fundamental engineering science discipline rooted in classical mechanics Starting with the strength experiments of Leonardo da Vinci and Galileo the author examines the emergence of individual structural analysis methods and their formation into theory of structures in the 19th century For the first time a book of this kind outlines the development from classical theory of structures to the structural mechanics and computational mechanics of the 20th century In doing so the author has managed to bring alive the differences between the players with respect to their engineering and scientific profiles and personalities and to create an understanding for the social context Brief insights into common methods of analysis backed up by historical details help the reader gain an understanding of the history of structural mechanics from the standpoint of modern engineering practice A total of 175 brief biographies of important personalities in civil and structural engineering as well as structural mechanics plus an extensive bibliography round off this work

Introduction to Unified Strength Theory Mao-Hong Yu, Shu-Qi Yu, 2019-05-15 Strength theory deals with the yield or failure of materials under complex stress state It is very important in mechanics of materials strength of structures and mechanical and civil engineering Unified strength theory is a series of yield criteria and failure criteria other than a single strength theory The unified strength theory can be adopted for various kinds of materials such as metallic materials geomaterials polymers etc It is the solution to the Voigt Timoshenko Conundrum Its limit surfaces cover all regions of the convex strength theory from the lower bound to the upper bound This book gives a clear and brief description about the unified strength theory both in figures and text Some applications of unified strength theory are also given in this book This book is suitable for undergraduate students who are studying the mechanics of materials and engineering mechanics as well as for graduate students who are interested in this field Researchers and engineers can also benefit from this book

Unified Strength Theory and Its Applications Mao-Hong Yu, 2017-11-21 This book thoroughly describes a theory concerning the yield and failure of materials under multi axial stresses the Unified Strength Theory which was first proposed by the author and has been frequently quoted since It provides a system of yield and failure criteria adopted for most materials from metals to rocks concretes soils and polymers This new edition includes six additional chapters General behavior of Strength theory function Visualization of the Unified Strength Theory Equivalent Stress of the UST and Comparisons with other criteria Economic Signification of the UST General form of failure criterion Beauty of Strength Theories It is intended for researchers and graduate students in various fields including engineering mechanics material mechanics plasticity soil mechanics rock mechanics mechanics of metallic materials and civil engineering hydraulic engineering geotechnical engineering mechanical engineering and military engineering History of Strength of Material Stephen P.
