Philosophy, Society and the Cunning of History in Eastern Europe Costica Bradatan, 2013-09-13 Philosophy Society and the Cunning of History in Eastern Europe charts the intellectual landscape of twentieth century East Central Europe under the unifying theme of precariousness as a mode of historical existence Caught between empires often marked by catastrophic historic events and grand political failures the countries of East Central Europe have for a long time developed a certain intellectual self representation a culture that not only helps them make some sense of such misfortunes but also protects them somehow from a collapse into nihilism An interdisciplinary study of this sophisticated culture of survival and endurance has been long overdue Not only is it charming and worth studying in its own right but with the re integration of the new Europe into the old one and the emergence on the Western European intellectual scene of many authors from the East such a culture will also shape the European mind of the 21st century This volume decodes and explores this culture of precariousness from the complementary angles of philosophy political theory intellectual history and literary studies Expert contributors look at a wide range of topics from philosophical martyrdom to collective suffering to geographical fatalism and explore the works of key authors in the field including Cioran Ko akowski Kert sz Bauman and i ek This book was originally published as a special issue of Angelaki The Journal of the Theoretical Humanities A Companion to Hellenistic

Hedeman, 2022-04-15 Visual Translation breaks new ground in the study of French manuscripts contributing to the fields of French humanism textual translation and the reception of the classical tradition in the first half of the fifteenth century While the prominence and quality of illustrations in French manuscripts have attracted attention their images have rarely been studied systematically as components of humanist translation Anne D Hedeman fills this gap by studying the humanist book production closely supervised by Laurent de Premierfait and Jean Lebegue for courtly Parisian audiences in the first half of the fifteenth century Hedeman explores how visual translation works in a series of unusually densely illuminated manuscripts associated with Laurent and Lebegue circa 1404-54 These manuscripts cover both Latin texts such as Statius's Thebaid and Achilleid Terence's Comedies and Sallust's Conspiracy of Cataline and Jurguthine War and French translations of Cicero's De senectute Boccaccio's De casibus virorum illustrium and Decameron and Bruni's De bello Punico primo Illuminations constitute a significant part of these manuscripts textual apparatus which helped shape access to and interpretation of the texts for a French audience Hedeman considers them as a group and reveals Laurent's and Lebegue's growing understanding of visual rhetoric and its ability to visually translate texts originating in a culture removed in time or geography for medieval readers who sought to understand them The book discusses what happens when the visual cycles so carefully devised in collaboration with libraries and artists by Laurent and Lebegue escaped their control
