Enhanced effects of combined cognitive bias modification and computerised cognitive behaviour therapy on social anxiety

Emma Butler¹, Sirous Mobini^{1,2*}, Ronald M. Rapee¹, Bundy Mackintosh¹ and Shirley A. Reynolds³

Abstract: This study examines whether combined cognitive bias modification for interpretative biases (CBM-I) and computerised cognitive behaviour therapy (C-CBT) can produce enhanced positive effects on interpretation biases and social anxiety. Forty socially anxious students were randomly assigned into two conditions, an intervention group (positive CBM-I + C-CBT) or an active control (neutral CBM-I + C-CBT). At pre-test, participants completed measures of social anxiety, interpretative bias, cognitive distortions, and social and work adjustment. They were exposed to 6 × 30 min sessions of web-based interventions including three sessions of either positive or neutral CBM-I and three sessions of C-CBT, one session per day. At post-test and two-week follow-up, participants completed the baseline measures. A combined positive CBM-I + C-CBT produced less negative interpretations of ambiguous situations than neutral CBM-I + C-CBT. The results also showed that both positive CBM-I + C-CBT and neutral CBM-I + C-CBT reduced social anxiety and cognitive distortions as well as improving work and social adjustment. However, greater effect sizes were observed in the positive CBM-I + C-CBT condition than the control. This indicates that adding positive CBM-I to C-CBT enhanced the training effects on social anxiety, cognitive distortions, and social and work adjustment compared to the neutral CBM-I + C-CBT condition.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Authors have been involved in developing the laboratory-based paradigms in modifying cognitive biases in anxiety over a decade. They have published extensively in the area of cognitive bias modification for anxiety disorders, both from a theoretical perspective and applied research.

PUBLIC INTEREST STATEMENT

People with social anxiety tend to interpret ambiguous situations in a negative manner. We developed a computerised treatment i.e. cognitive bias modification for interpretative biases (CBM-I) which aims to modify negative interpretations. We combined CBM-I with another treatment method, i.e. computerised cognitive behaviour therapy (C-CBT) and examined the effects of both CBM-I and C-CBT on social anxiety and negative interpretations. The results showed that combining both treatments produced better treatment outcomes.

Enhanced Effects Of Combined Cognitive Bias Modification:

Interpretational Processing Biases in Emotional Psychopathology Marcella L. Woud,2023-03-28 The primary aim of this book is to bridge the gap between lab based and clinical research by disseminating the latest interdisciplinary scientific findings on interpretational processing biases in the context of emotional psychopathology It is designed to help the practitioner by drawing explicit links between the basic science and implications for clinical practice This enables an enhanced interaction between science and practice strengthening bi directional translational links and the potential to produce more meaningful and significant advances in the treatment of emotional psychopathology This in turn will facilitate an innovative step change in the area of both research and clinical practice The book focuses on cognitive processing biases that are common across a wide range of psychological disorders meaning that the conclusions drawn have relevance across the whole spectrum of psychopathology and will stimulate and inspire a broad range of discussions and future work From the foreword by Nikolaos Kazantzis The practice of CBT is complex and requires a tailored approach Every technique has a specific target but may be used for multiple purposes simultaneously in support of the client s therapeutic goals The purpose of Dr Woud s book is to elucidate the ways in which interpretational biases can be a focus of intervention for CBT therapists at all stages of professional development from those undertaking training to master clinicians Dr Woud has succeeded admirably in this regard

Augmenting Interpretative Cognitive Bias Modification Using Memory Reconsolidation Updating Michael David Lee,2017 Research suggests that interpretative cognitive biases can be attenuated by cognitive bias modification for interpretation CBM I However small effect sizes and a lack of follow up data highlight a need to increase the potency and durability of CBM I Recent findings have suggested that reactivating a fear memory briefly before behavioral intervention may suppress later return of fear through utilization of a process known as reconsolidation updating The current experiment investigated the efficacy of a CBM I augmentation that involved administering a brief fear reactivation procedure prior to CBM I 74 adults with clinical social anxiety were randomly assigned to give an impromptu speech either 10 minutes prior to interpretation bias training CBM FRT 24 hours prior to training CBM or 24 hours prior to placebo training CONTROL Social anxiety symptomology and interpretation bias were assessed using self report questionnaires and a behavioral task at baseline BL post training POST 1 week follow up FU1 and 2 week FU2 follow up Mixed effects regression models revealed that as hypothesized the CBM FRT group had significantly lower interpretation bias than the CBM group at FU2 but not at POST or FU1 However there were no significant between group differences in self reported anxiety symptoms at any assessment Additionally no difference in interpretation bias between CBM and CONTROL was found at POST Findings provide support for continued investigation of brief fear network reactivation as a means of enhancing anxiety treatment However a failure to find effects of non augmented CBM I suggests that further scrutiny is necessary to determine CBM s clinical utility

McClelland, 2009 From William James to Sigmund Freud to Jean Piaget to B F Skinner scholars and parents have wondered how children move from the blooming buzzing confusion of infancy through the tumult of childhood and adolescence into adulthood Does development occur continuously over time or in a series of dramatic stages Is development driven by learning or by biological maturational processes What is the nature of experience and how does it generate change The study of development has always been organized around these big questions And answers to these questions have a profound influence on daily life forming a framework for how parents think about their own children and influencing both national policy and educational curricula This book defines and refines two major theoretical approaches within developmental science that address the central issues of development connectionism and dynamical systems theory Spencer Thomas and McClelland have brought together chapters that provide an introduction overview and critical evaluation of each approach including three sets of case studies that illustrate how both approaches have been used to study topics ranging from early motor development to the acquisition of grammar They also present a collection of commentaries by leading scholars which offer a critical view from both an outsiders s and an insider s perspective The book is unique in the range of its treatment it begins to delineate how developmental science can incorporate advances within neuroscience and computational modeling and brings the new ideas of connectionism and dynamic systems theory into sharper focus clarifying their usefulness and explanatory power
