Cambridge Encyclopedia Of Hunters And Gatherers:

The Cambridge Encyclopedia of Hunters and Gatherers Richard B. Lee, Richard Heywood Daly, Richard Daly, 1999-12-16 Hunting and gathering is humanity's first and most successful adaptation. Until 12,000 years ago, all humanity lived this way. Surprisingly, in an increasingly urbanized and technological world, dozens of hunting and gathering societies have persisted and thrive worldwide, resilient in the face of change. Their ancient ways, now combined with the trappings of modernity, are the focus of this work. The Encyclopedia is divided into three parts. The first contains case studies by leading experts of over fifty hunting and gathering peoples in seven major world regions. There is a general introduction and an archaeological overview for each region. Part II contains thematic essays on prehistory, social life, gender, music, and art, health, religion, and indigenous knowledge. The final part surveys the complex histories of hunter-gatherers' encounters with colonialism and the state and their ongoing struggles for dignity and human rights as part of the worldwide movement of indigenous peoples.

The Cambridge Encyclopedia of Hunters and Gatherers Richard B. Lee, Richard Daly, 1999. A comprehensive survey of the conditions, cultures, and concerns of contemporary hunter-gatherers, giving a window on the current discourse in social theory pertaining to foraging peoples and their place in history. The Cambridge Encyclopedia of Hunters and Gatherers Richard B. Lee, Richard Daly, 2006. Hunter-gatherer Childhoods Barry S. Hewlett, Michael E. Lamb. In the vast anthropological literature devoted to hunter-gatherer societies, surprisingly little attention has been paid to the place of hunter-gatherer children. Children often represent 40 percent of hunter-gatherer populations; thus, nearly half the population is omitted from most hunter-gatherer ethnographies and research. This volume is designed to bridge the gap in our understanding of the daily lives, knowledge, and development of hunter-gatherer children. The twenty-six contributors to Hunter-Gatherer Childhoods use three general but complementary theoretical approaches: evolutionary, developmental, and cultural. In their presentations of new and insightful ethnographic data, the authors employ these theoretical orientations to provide the first systematic studies of hunter-gatherer children's hunting, play, infant care, weaning, and expressions of grief. The chapters focus on understanding the daily life experiences of children and their views and feelings about their lives and cultural change. Chapters address some of the following questions: why does childhood exist? Who cares for hunter-gatherer children? What are the characteristic features of hunter-gatherer children's development, and what are the impacts of culture change on hunter-gatherer child care? The book is divided into five parts. The first section provides historical, theoretical, and conceptual framework for the volume. The second section examines data to test competing hypotheses regarding why childhood is particularly long in humans. The third section expands on the second section by looking at who cares for hunter-gatherer children. The fourth section explores several developmental issues, such as weaning, play, and loss of loved ones. The final section examines the impact of sedentism and schools on hunter-gatherer children. This pioneering volume will help to stimulate further research and scholarship on hunter-gatherer childhoods, thereby advancing our understanding of the way of life that characterized most of human history and of the processes that may have shaped both human development and human evolution Barry S Hewlett is professor of anthropology at Washington State University Vancouver Michael E Lamb is professor of psychology in the social sciences Cambridge University
