strategy model of social change that social workers can use to impact the policy process at the agency level to benefit clients. Social workers must learn to advocate changes in policy at the agency level in order to benefit and empower consumers of social services. The action strategy model will be useful for all social workers whether they are intervening at the agency level or at larger social systems such as regional or state levels. Value issues, ethical considerations, and diversity permeate every aspect of policy making from formulation of the initial idea to implementation of a new policy. This book discusses values and diversity inherent in the agency policy change process as well as how these relate to professional social work values.

Social Forces, 1926      The Indian Journal of Social Work, 2008      Social Welfare & Social Development in South Africa Leila Patel, 2005. The White Paper for Social Welfare adopted by Parliament in 1997 provided a policy framework to shift social welfare from meeting the needs of a small minority to a social development perspective. This policy change has required the complete overhaul of the current welfare system with far-reaching implications for human and financial resources, policy, and legislative reform in line with the new constitution and the Bill of Rights changes in institutional arrangements and trade-offs between different sectors and interests in society. In the past, social work education was not developmentally orientated and tended to borrow uncritically from North American and European theory and practice. There was a lack of South African and African literature in the field of welfare and development. In addition to the need for the renewal of social work education in South Africa, there was also a need for the re-orientation of existing social workers to implement new welfare thinking and to appraise theory and practice critically.      American Book Publishing Record Cumulative, 1950-1977 R.R.
