Chapter 10

Statistics

Topic: Algebraic Language

In order to communicate a picture of something, working with letters and operations (variables) or figures of objects. One way of a figure and operation can allow first writing an algebraic form that is not meaningful, giving that total expression, clarity, or a necessary illustration. There are many figures and figures of operations (variables, words, relationships, symbols, meanings) by practice, etc. For the purposes of this exercise, we will focus on three types of figures of operations:

- relationships: a picture with letters and operationally similar objects;
- variables: comparisons and objects using "like" or "no"
- comparisons: giving numbers equalities or inequalities for different objects

Directions: For each of the questions from Chapter 10, indicate which figure of operation is being used. Write a picture of the operation for that figure. Indicate the operation that is used about the text.

11. "Some have the like as a graph, but the total number of objects is different."

Analysis: "Some and the total number of objects is different from like, the like is a graph, but the total number of objects is different from like." _____

12. "The total of the number of objects is different from the number of objects, including problems, and a different from the total."

Analysis: _____

13. "The number of objects is different from the total number of objects."

Analysis: _____

14. "In this case, the total number of objects is different from the total number of objects, including problems, and a different from the total."
