ABSTRACT

Medusa is a parallel graph processing system on graphics processors (GPUs). The core design of Medusa is to enable developers to leverage the massive parallelism and other hardware features of GPUs by writing sequential C/C++ code for a small set of APIs. This simplifies the implementation of parallel graph processing on the GPU. The runtime system of Medusa automatically executes the user-defined APIs in parallel on the GPU, with a series of optimizations based on the architecture features of GPUs and characteristics of graph applications. In this paper, we present an overview of the Medusa system and a case study of adopting Medusa to a research project on social network simulations. With Medusa, users without GPU programming experience can quickly implement their graph operations on the GPU, which accelerates the discovery and findings of domain-specific applications.

1. INTRODUCTION

GPGPU (General-Purpose Computation on Graphics Processing Units) is gaining increasing popularity in performance acceleration for many applications, including graph processing [8, 10]. A Modern GPU can have over an order of magnitude higher memory bandwidth and computation power than a multi-core CPU. With intensive and application-specific optimizations, GPU-based graph algorithms have shown significant performance improvement over CPU-based implementations. For example, the GPU accelerated breadth first search (BFS) algorithm is up to 14 times faster than multi-core implementation [10]. However, despite the recent improvements on GPGPU programmability, writing a correct and efficient GPU program is challenging in general and even more difficult for the highly irregular graph applications.

To address the above-mentioned issues and simplify programming graph processing algorithms on the GPU, we propose the Medusa parallel graph processing programming framework. Like existing programming frameworks such as Hadoop [17] and Mars [9], Medusa provides a small set of APIs for developers to implement their applications by writing sequential (C/C++) code. Different from Hadoop and Mars, which adopts the MapReduce programming model [3], Medusa adopts our novel "Edge-Message-Vertex" (EMV) graph programming model for fine-grained processing on edges, messages and vertices. Medusa embraces an efficient message passing based runtime. It automatically executes user-defined APIs in parallel within one GPU and across multiple GPUs, and hides the complexity of GPU programming from developers. Thus, developers can write the same APIs, which automatically run on one or multiple GPUs. To maximally leverage the power of GPUs, Medusa embraces a series of optimizations based on the architecture features of GPUs and characteristics of graph applications.

As a case study, we adopt Medusa to implement GPU accelerated simulation of information propagation over social networks. Simulation of information propagation is computationally intensive and fortunately highly parallelizable, which makes it viable for GPU acceleration. By the case study, we demonstrate that Medusa both improves the coding productivity and brings significant performance speedups.

This paper gives an overview of Medusa based on work reported in [20, 18, 11, 12, 13]. We first present the design of the main components of Medusa's system architecture and evaluation results. We then present the case study developed based on Medusa. Finally, we conclude this paper and present the future work.
