Abstract

This study is a descriptive-correlational research aimed to determine the significant relationship between Emotional Quotient, Adversity Quotient® and the Academic Performance of Student-Parents. Chi Square Test was utilized to test the significant relationship among variables. A purposive sampling was employed since there are only thirty (30) identified student-parents enrolled in the university. The General Weighted Average (GWA) during the second semester of AY 2016-2017 of the respondents was used to determine their academic performance. Based on the findings of the study, majority of the student-parents is at their late 20's and early 30's, female, Education students, in their lower year, and has 1 – 2 children. These results suggest that the student-parents are in their matured ages since almost all of them are returnees. The respondents reported that they have a high level of emotional quotient. Therefore, the study revealed that there is no significant relationship among student-parents' emotional quotient,

The Adversity Quotient And Academic Performance Among:

Adversity Quotient (AQ) and Academic Performance of Selected Students in MSU Marawi City Raymon P. Española, 2018
Adversity Quotient AQ is the ability to surmount life's adversities whether academic career or personal social in nature. The study aimed to describe and correlate the AQ and academic performance of third year and fourth year students in Mindanao State University MSU. It was hypothesized that college students who thrived in a university of multicultural population were persons high in AQ as they were high in academic performance. AQ was measured using the internally reliable Adversity Response Profile Revised and academic performance was measured by the cumulative grade point average. The respondents were selected through quota sampling. The results revealed that the AQ and academic performance were positively correlated with each other. However, only one of the four components of AQ, the Origin and Ownership O2, was shown to have a significant relationship with academic performance. These findings suggest that the variance in the academic performance of college students would be better explained by the tendency of one to take responsibility for life adversities and not by the entire AQ as a construct itself. This insight is significant to educators, guidance counselors, and parents to nurture in students personal efficacy and self-regulation to facilitate academic success.

Covid-19 changed the lives of millions of people around the world. The effects of the global pandemic on the physical and psychological health of individuals, as well as on their behavioral habits, relationships, and the way they communicate, do not seem to be only short or medium term but, on the contrary, appear to be long-lasting. In the same way that it is possible to use the term long covid to refer to the long-term effects on the physical health of individuals who have contracted the virus, so we think it is possible to use the expression psychological long covid to indicate the long-term effects on the psychological health of individuals, not only of those who have been infected but more generally of all those who have had to cope with social restrictions, lockdowns, distancing, remote work, and learning, etc., imposed by the pandemic. At the same time, many people
