

Critical Thinking – A3

The purpose of our critical thinking program is to develop clarity and rigor in reasoning and its presentation, and the ability to understand, represent, and evaluate the presentations of reasoning made by others. We pursue these goals by means of training in the following areas:

Deductive reasoning:

1. Demonstrate the ability to use rules and strategies for deriving conclusions;
2. Demonstrate the ability to use rules and strategies for testing for validity;
3. Demonstrate an understanding of the logical features of words such as "all," "or," "not;"
4. Demonstrate the ability to translate into logical structure natural language reasoning.

Inductive reasoning:

1. Demonstrate the ability to evaluate statistical reasoning;
2. Demonstrate an understanding of correlation including its limitation in causal claims;
3. Demonstrate the methods of testing hypotheses using deductive reasoning;
4. Demonstrate understanding of the complexity of causal claims.

Analysis of natural language reasoning:

1. Successfully identify premises, intermediate and final conclusions;
2. Distinguish between independent and interdependent reasoning types;
3. Identify suppressed premises;
4. Identify unexpressed final and intermediate conclusions.

Fallacious reasoning:

Demonstrate the ability to identify steps in reasoning that are not cogent yet appear so.

Presentation of reasoning:

Present orally or in writing well reasoned cases in support of a proposition or in refutation of another's position.

Critical thinking competency requires that the student demonstrate proficiency in four of the five areas described above.
