

GROSS MOTOR/MOVEMENT

The activities in this section are intended to be fun and creative. They will give the children an opportunity to imagine and move like the characters in the opera. Let them imagine how the wolf would move and how the pigs would move. Are the pigs round and fat? Is the wolf large and thin? How do different shapes or sizes affect the way you move? How are the peddlers going to move their wares? Are the wares on the backs of the peddlers or in a wagon? Pretend you are carrying a heavy load of sticks, straw, or bricks. Is it easier to carry or push?

Add music to some of these activities. Let the children comment on the music. Does it help them to imagine more clearly? Have them move as the wolf in "Peter and the Wolf," the wolf in "Three Piggy Opera," and the wolf in "Little Red Riding Hood."

Make up a "catching game." Half the class are wolves and half are pigs. The wolves try to catch the pigs. The pigs try to run to a safe house. If the pigs are caught, the wolves can take them to the forest. Designate what areas are safe houses and what area is the forest.

DRAMATIC PLAY

The dramatic play center is the place for the children to experiment and do a lot of problem solving with regard to set decorations, props, and costumes. By allowing them to set up a stage and by encouraging them to act and sing the opera, the teacher is giving them an opportunity to play at rehearsing. This type of play-acting goes beyond the opera itself. The children can change the story and the characters if they desire. It is intended for fun and to broaden their learning experiences.

The following are some of the activities they can do. Let the children build houses out of blocks, cardboard boxes, and plastic cubes. It will help everyone make a decision about what materials will work for the production.

Have the children try different clothing as costumes. You might suggest how their everyday clothes, with a few accessories added, might serve as better costumes. For example, all they may have to add is an apron for the mother pig, caps for the peddlers, and a tail pinned to the wolf.

Discuss with the children what props will be needed for the wolf and the peddlers. Does the wolf need to be hiding in the forest? Will the peddlers be carrying sticks, bricks, and straw? Should these props be authentic, or should they be made out of paper?

When production activities begin in the art center, some problems need to be resolved, and some final decisions need to be made. These discussions with the children during the time they play at rehearsing in the dramatic play center will help them reach some final conclusions.
