

AN ABANDONED BUNDLE

OSWALD MBUYISENI MTSHALI

The morning mist
and chimney smoke
of White City Jaburu
flowed thick yellow
as pus oozing
from a gigantic sore.

It smothered our little houses
like fish caught in a net.

Scavenging dogs
draped in red bandanas of blood
fought fiercely
for a squirming bundle.

I threw a brick
they bared fangs
licked velvet tongues of scarlet
and scurried away,
leaving a mutilated corpse an infant dumped on a rubbish heap-
'Ohi Baby in the Manger

In contrast to the 'gigantic sore' stands the little houses. This emphasises the smothering capabilities of the "pus". The houses are also representational of the people who live in the city. This is dehumanising. That the houses are little also suggests poverty.

Difficulty of escaping life in a township.
The people are again dehumanised by being compared to fish. The net is representational of the city's fish. The line is also a reference to the fishing industry which involves the exploitation of the sea. This suggests the exploitation of the people.

Scavenging dogs indicate the poverty.

Bandanas are symbolic of a predatory nature and suggest gangsterism in the city as well as the violent nature of the dogs. 'Blood' also suggests violence and that it may be necessary for survival in the city. It also shows that the dogs have spilled the blood of what they are attacking.

The dogs retreat, being compared with rodents ('scurried'), this shows cowardice which contrasts with their vicious threat display in the previous two lines.

The baby is referred to as a corpse which dehumanises it and suggests the lack of importance its life has in the city.

A parallel is drawn between the Christ child and the dead infant.
