Five Houses, Ten Details Edward R. Ford, 2012-04-17 Edward Ford's forty years of practicing and teaching architecture have focused on one area the architectural detail Yet despite two hugely influential books The Details of Modern Architecture volumes 1 and 2 numerous articles and lectures given from Vancouver to Vienna there are two questions Ford has remarkably never answered What is a detail and more importantly What is a good detail Ford is an architect as well as a writer so it is not surprising that rather than answering these questions in a third book he spent six years on the design and construction of a house Building it was not an exercise in the application of ideas about detail it was rather a mechanism for answering those two simple questions

Weather Architecture Jonathan Hill, 2013-06-17 Weather Architecture further extends Jonathan Hill's investigation of authorship by recognising the creativity of the weather At a time when environmental awareness is of growing relevance the overriding aim is to understand a history of architecture as a history of weather and thus to consider the weather as an architectural author that affects design construction and use in a creative dialogue with other authors such as the architect and user Environmental discussions in architecture tend to focus on the practical or the poetic but here they are considered together Rather than investigate architecture's relations to the weather in isolation they are integrated into a wider discussion of cultural and social influences on architecture The analysis of weather's effects on the design and experience of specific buildings and gardens is interwoven with a historical survey of changing attitudes to the weather in the arts sciences and society leading to a critical re evaluation of contemporary responses to climate change

Finishing in Architecture Paul Emmons, Marcia Feuerstein, Negar Goljan, 2025-06-30 Finishing in Architecture Polishing Completing Ending explores the topic of finishing and the fascinating physical and metaphysical implications of its various conceptions in architecture Finishing is essential to all human practices and concepts of time yet simultaneously it is largely impossible to identify an entirely finished state of being As mortals we organize our worlds into beginnings and endings starts and finishes Architecture s temporality however may contain something of both the mortal and immortal within it a desire for permanence combined with lamentation over its impossibility While many approaches to finishing construct two opposed ontological conditions the finished and the unfinished this dualistic ploy neglects the complexity of architectural practice cultural reception and historiographic shifts in semiotics during the lifetime of a building More nuanced approaches are examined in this collection of 38 essays and creative works from a diverse group of scholars architects and artists who conceptualize finishing not simply as a final outcome but as an extended action a mood that presumes an end is near all the while working continuously toward but never achieving completion It is here that the concept of finishing is not a state of being but a state of becoming as an active thickening of time when the end is thought to be imminent but not yet attained Finishing more than a final endpoint is a void state that is extended through efforts framing its territory while never quite containing it From the material to the procedural and the conceptual this volume explores the practices of finishing in architecture within three currents surfaces projects and most broadly architectural times It will be of interest to students and instructors of architecture and design architectural historians and other scholars
