Picnic at Hanging Rock Anna Backman Rogers, Peter Weir's haunting and allusive Picnic at Hanging Rock 1975 set in 1900 tells the story of the mysterious disappearance of three schoolgirls and their teacher on a trip to a local geological formation The film is widely hailed as a classic of new Australian cinema seen as exemplary of a peculiarly Australian style of heritage filmmaking Anna Backman Rogers study considers Picnic from feminist psychoanalytic and decolonialising perspectives exploring its setting in a colonised Australian bushland in which the Aboriginal people are a spectral presence in a landscape stolen from them in pursuit of the white man's terra nullis She delves into the film's production history addressing director Weir's influences and preoccupations at the time of its making its reception and its lasting impact on visual culture more broadly Rogers addresses the film's treatment of the young schoolgirls and their teachers seemingly as embodiments of an archetype of the eternal feminine as objects of the male gaze and in terms of ideas about female hysteria as a protest against gender norms She argues that Picnic is in fact highly subversive a film that requires its viewers to read its seductive surfaces against the grain of the image in order to uncover its psychological depths
