

PIZZA PAZZA

Jean and François, the two entrepreneurial brothers that own Pizza Pazza, are planning to expand their family business by addressing a growing market need. They started their family restaurant Pizza Pazza about ten years ago on the Rue de Sablon in Fontainebleau, France. Their growing popularity rapidly attracted competitors, such as Pizza Aloué, who located just next door to Pizza Pazza! While their restaurant provides a fine dining experience, the two brothers had been receiving numerous requests for a take-out and delivery service from busy MBA students. Initially dismayed with suggestions to cater to such utilitarian approach to food and dining, Jean nevertheless believed that a take-out service could be a good growth strategy. In addition, they could stick to their high quality reputation by offering fresh mouth-watering specialty pizzas. Jean was convinced that endless custom variety, fresh on-demand baking and impeccable service could provide a viable niche position that could compete against better-known international companies like Pizza Hut.

The brothers agreed that they should give it a try. Given that the current dining-in facility was running close to capacity, a new facility was needed. François was to remain responsible for the restaurant while Jean was taking the lead on establishing the take-out service. He rapidly found an empty facility in neighboring Avon. Not only was this close to their main market—Avon is about 2 km from Fontainebleau—rents were also lower there. The new facility also allowed Jean to redesign their pizza production process and decide on many operational variables that would determine the profitability of the take-out business.

A pizza is a typically circular dish made of a flour base topped with additions of your choice, including anchovies, pepperoni, peppers, ham, tomatoes, or pineapple, baked and served piping hot! Most people wrongly believe pizza originated in Italy. It appears that what we know as pizza came into vogue around the time of Napoleon and the French revolution, however, there also is some evidence that pizza originated in Greece. Italians, known to be lovers of fine food and wines perfected and imported this terrific dish to America. From here it quickly endeared itself to mass production and re-export to the rest of the world.

The Process for making a gourmet pizza follows a simple recipe. First mix together the pizza sauce of 2 cans tomato sauce, 1 lb. minced pre-cooked beef, 1 chopped onion, and 1-teaspoon salt. Put that aside, then mix the pizza dough: 1 cup of warm water, 1 tablespoon of baking yeast, 1 tablespoon of vegetable oil, 1 teaspoon salt, and 2 cups of whole wheat flour. Now beat that dough until it is nice and elastic, then add more flour until it is a little stiff and knead it out onto a round shallow butter greased pan, rolling up the edges to about half an inch. Next, spread the sauce you made in the beginning and the toppings, including the cheese, specified by the customer generously across the surface.

Professor J.A. Van Mieghem prepared this case as a basis for class discussion rather than to illustrate either the factual, effective or ineffective handling of a managerial situation. The case is inspired by Kruttschnitt's Cookie Company, written by Roger Behm.
