The Solvent In An Aqueous Solution Is:

Chemistry in Non-Aqueous Solvents B. Trémillon, 2012-12-06 Arising no doubt from its pre eminence as a natural liquid water has always been considered by chemists as the original solvent in which very varied chemical reactions can take place both for preparational and for analytical purposes This explains the very long standing interest shown in the study of aqueous solutions In this connection it must be stressed that the theory of Arrhenius and Ostwald 1887 1894 on electrolytic dissociation was originally devised solely for solutions in water and that the first true concept of acidity resulting from this is linked to the use of this solvent The more recent development of numerous physico chemical measurement methods has made possible an increase of knowledge in this area up to an extremely advanced degree of systematization Thus today we have available both a very large amount of experimental data together with very refined methods of deduction and of quantitative treatment of chemical reactions in solution which enable us to make the fullest use of this data Nevertheless it appears quite evident at present that there are numerous chemical processes which cannot take place in water and that its use as a solvent imposes 2 INTRODUCTION limitations In order to overcome these limitations it was natural that interest should be attracted to solvents other than water and that the new possibilities thus opened up should be explored E3
