

Responses to complex humanitarian emergencies and natural disasters: an analytical comparison

J M ALBALA-BERTRAND

ABSTRACT This article analytically compares complex humanitarian emergencies with natural disasters, concentrating on disaster responses and interference with society. There are some important analytical differences between the responses to these two types of disaster, like overlapping and interactions, persistence and duration, access and timing, assistance involvement and intervention, physical and societal recovery, and others. However, the fundamental difference between natural and politically induced disasters is the way institutions are affected. In natural disasters, there can be some significant interference with society and therefore institutional change arising from both the impact effects and the responses, but this is infrequent, mostly incidental and not normally widespread or long-term. In complex emergencies, most aspects of the impact and effects have deliberate institutional aims and overtones. Likewise, the response to this type of calamity is also bound to cause significant interference with society, which may be intense, long-term and mostly deliberate.

A natural disaster impact is primarily the outcome of a physically uncompensated interaction between an unleashing natural event and a social system, whereas a complex humanitarian emergency is primarily the outcome of an institutionally uncompensated interaction between an unleashing societal event and a social system. The latter has been defined as:

a purposeful and unlikely neutral response, intended mostly to counteract the worse effects of the massive human destitution that derive from an overt political phenomenon, which takes the form of a violent, entrenched and long-lasting factionalist conflict or imposition with ultimate institutional aims. (Albala-Bertrand, 2000a: 20 emphasis in the original).

As discussed there, a complex humanitarian emergency, or a complex emergency for short, appears to be implicitly embedded in a similar conceptual structure to that of the general disaster situation framework that was proposed by Albala-Bertrand (1993). Although this analytical framework was especially used to study natural disasters, its abstraction level makes it flexible enough to accommodate other types of disaster. This implies the articulation of three main categories of factors: (i) pre-disaster factors; (ii) disaster impact and impact

War and Hunger Joanna Macrae, 1994 The authors explore ways in which warfare creates hunger The cases of Angola Sudan Tigray Eritrea Mozambique and Somalia illuminate the nature of complex emergencies in situations of war Other chapters focus on the reforms required of the UN s machinery reassess the role of relief in time of war and ask how the international community should respond to the new circumstances of post Cold War international interventions

Practice and Principle in Humanitarian Responses to Complex Emergencies M. Cutts, 1997 This thesis draws heavily on the personal experience of the author in areas of conflict and particularly in Bosnia It examines the limitations of operational neutrality and the ineffectiveness of humanitarian operations which are carried out solely on the basis of consent from warlords and factional authorities It concludes that humanitarianism and politics cannot be separated when dealing with humanitarian crises which have political causes

Humanitarian Response Index 2007 Silvia Hidalgo, A. López-Claros, Development Assistance Research Associates, 2008-01-15 Every year millions of people are affected by conflict and natural disasters Growing public awareness of these crises and their severity and tragic consequences has resulted in an increase in the available funding over the past decades and demonstrated the need to reform the international humanitarian system It is now more important than ever to have the kind of information and practical tools that allow humanitarian action to be assessed so that it can be improved The HRI addresses one of the main links of the humanitarian response system donor countries whose policies critically influence the rest of the chain Donors can apply pressure to make humanitarian action more effective relevant and coherent The HRI provides an annual detailed analysis of the evolution of humanitarian action donor commitments and outstanding challenges Its aim is to raise the awareness among donors humanitarian actors and society as a whole about the importance of humanitarian action and the principles of Good Humanitarian Donorship The information in the HRI focuses on the promotion of active policy dialogue in the search for coherent answers to an increasingly complex reality

Biopolitics, Governmentality and Humanitarianism Volha Piotukh, 2015-04-10 This book critically analyses the changing role and nature of post Cold War humanitarianism using Foucault s theories of biopolitics and governmentality It offers a compelling and insightful interpretation of the policies and practices associated with new humanitarianism in general as well as of the dynamics of two specific international assistance efforts the post 2001 conflict related assistance effort in Afghanistan and the post 2000 Chernobyl related assistance effort in Belarus The central argument of the book is that new humanitarianism represents a dominant regime of humanitarian governing informed by globalising neoliberalism and is reliant on a complex set of biopolitical disciplinary and sovereign technologies It demonstrates that while the purposes of humanitarian governing are specific to particular contexts its promise of care is more often than not accompanied by sovereign and or biopolitical violences Making an important contribution to existing

United States Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. Development Assistance Committee, 1998 The OECD Development Assistance Committee s 1998 review of the US development aid policies and programmes It finds that after a period of declining support the United States has in recent years worked to strengthen both political and public confidence in its foreign assistance programmes USAID s new Strategic Plan issued in September 1997 aims at clear results through its support of developing and transitional countries efforts to achieve sustained economic and social progress and to share more fully in resolving global problems An ambitious effort has been made to link the reform of aid management to clearer goals and stronger partnerships Nevertheless the volume of resources devoted by the United States to official development assistance has continued its downward trend Measured as a percentage of GNP the United States now provides the lowest amount by far of any Member of the OECD Development Assistance Committee DAC At its triennial review of the United States aid policies and programmes on 6 April 1998 the DAC welcomed the measures that have been taken and looked forward to the full impact of the reforms and initiatives that have been launched After serious international concern over recent years about diminishing funding and staffing in the United States programme there are welcome first indications of strengthening budgets for aid to developing countries confirmed by President Clinton's recent commitment to seek to increase the budget for African aid to its historically high levels. It is important that the United States pursue pro-development policies on a broad range of issues. Thus the review gives special attention to the work of USAID in the areas of democracy, participation, governance, dealing with conflict and disasters, as well as the Transition Initiative set up to help the United States respond to the needs falling between relief and development. Trade policy is also highlighted, as are the United States' multilateral contributions and its role in promoting gender equality. Development Co-operation Review Series, 1998
