

Enlightenment and Revolution, 1550-1789

I. The Scientific Revolution

- The Renaissance sparked curiosity in many fields; scholars began to question ideas that have been accepted for hundreds of years
- While the Reformation prompted followers to question accepted ways of thinking about God and salvation, another revolution had begun
- People began to question how they viewed the physical world

II. The Roots of Modern Science

- Before 1500, scholars decided what was true or false by referring to an ancient Greek or Roman author or the Bible
- A few challenged the scientific ideas of the ancient thinkers or the church by carefully observing nature for themselves

a) The Medieval View

- Most scholars during the Middle Ages believed that the Earth was an immovable object at the center of the universe
- According to that belief, the moon, the sun, and the planets all moved in perfectly circular paths around the earth
- This earth centered view of the universe was called the geocentric theory
- The idea came from two Greeks, Aristotle and astronomer Ptolemy; Christianity taught that God had deliberately placed the earth at the center of the universe

b) A New Way of Thinking

- Beginning in the mid-1500s, scholars challenged the ancient thinkers and the Church; replace old ideas
- Beginning the Scientific Revolution, a new way of thinking about the natural world
- It was based on careful observation and a willingness to question accepted beliefs
- New discoveries and circumstances helped spread the impact of the Scientific Revolution
- European explorers traveled to other continents which introduced them to people and animals unknown to Europeans; People realized that there were new truths to be found
- The printing press also helped spread the challenging ideas around Europe
- European exploration fueled research, especially in astronomy and mathematics
- Navigators needed better instruments and geographic measurements to determine their location on the open sea
