A 21st Century Employability Skills Improvement Framework for the Construction Industry John Aliu,Clinton Aigbavboa,Wellington Thwala,2021-04-30 This book will provide readers with an understanding of the employability concept and develop an employability skills improvement model to enhance the employability of built environment graduates to foster economic development. The developed model determines the influence of generic skills, discipline specific skills, work integrated learning, emotional intelligence, university industry collaboration outcomes and 4IR knowledge in predicting the outcomes of improved graduate employability. The model is developed with a theoretical lens on existing frameworks of employability and skills development. Whilst drawing comparisons with countries such as the UK, USA, Australia and Canada, the authors present the results of a two stage Delphi survey in South Africa as a case study on the current state of skills development and on the skills of the future. The case study is presented in line with the South Africa's long term National Development Plan (NDP) aimed at developing the key capabilities and skills of its citizens by ensuring quality education on a broader scale by 2030. As automation continues to rapidly advance, the pressures on universities to revamp and restructure their curricula have become increasingly necessary. This book recommends that higher education institutions urgently need to intensify their efforts by introducing significant modifications to the science and technology curriculum to enable students to develop and acquire competencies in the rapidly emerging areas of artificial intelligence, data science, robotics, advanced simulation, data communication, system automation, real time inventory operations, cloud computing and information technologies. This implies that universities' curriculum should be infused with 4IR thinking within the conventional primary sciences of biology, chemistry and physics with greater emphasis on digital literacy to boost 4IR understanding amongst the graduates. The book is therefore of interest to researchers and policy makers in the built environment that are placed in academia, the construction industry or at consultancy levels; it provides significant recommendations for universities as they intensify their efforts to develop graduates for the future.

Open Innovation Dynamics Jinhyo Joseph Yun, 2022-11-04

This book expands the concept of open innovation from a static strategic idea to a dynamic principle. It details various underexplored aspects of this concept including the culture for necessary open innovation dynamics, the difference between James Watt and Steve Jobs and collective intelligence as a new category of open innovation. It specifically considers open innovation within the context of micro and macro dynamics of economics.
