

During the negative half cycle of the supply, diodes D3 and D4 conduct in series, but diodes D1 and D2 switch “OFF” as they are now reverse biased. The current flowing through the load is the same direction as before.

The Negative Half-cycle

In subsequent Half cycles of the AC Current the above process are repeated. In both the half cycles it is clear that current flows through the resistor in only one direction. Even though the voltage across load is unidirectional it will still contains a few AC components. This is filtered and made smooth using a capacitor, which filters 99% of the AC current. A resistor is then used to adjust the output voltage. Capacitor also nearly filters all AC components from supply and resistance is adjusted for the required output. As this is a simple circuit, two capacitors and one resistor are being used. The output Direct Current and voltage light up the LED and other source connected with it.
