One of the grammar parts, namely tenses, is considered challenging to acquire. This study aimed at finding out the learners' problems batch 2018 in using English tenses. By using a multiple-choice test and a questionnaire. The study employed a quantitative approach and described the result in narrative form. The subject of this study was the whole population of English Language Education Program batch 2018, in a total of 98 students. The findings reveal that most of them have problems with past perfect tense (61%), past perfect continuous tense (61%), and future perfect continuous tense (67%). These problems are related to the difficulty in applying the aspect and tense in the right context, first language interference, lack of practice repetition, and students' confidence in using the language. It suggested that language teachers should focus their language instruction not only to form but also to function and meaning of the tenses. Additionally, if the person does not know how those words should arrange to make proper sentences, the communication will not take place. Considering the significance of morphology in learning a new language, one needs to know the rules of the language as well as how those rules applied in the real context of communication. Due to the main aim of learning grammar in a pedagogical sense is to support learners to be skillful in listening, speaking, reading, and writing.

Grammar can embed in the teaching of other skills or, on the contrary, can deliver in isolation. The needs for having grammar instructions are not only necessary for foreign language and second language learners but also first language ones (Jufrizal, 2014). Debata argues that anyone who tries to communicate by using a particular language, whether it is consciously or not, becomes aware of the grammar of that language (Debata, 2013). It means that all language teachers need to pay attention to the appropriate methods and materials of
