

Analysing Computer Games and Analogies

Analysing Computer Games

Supports students with the following activities as a part of providing your students computer game-different things—analogy and open-ended questions with predetermined alternative answers.

Supports two competencies, too. They may use them as questions for people, ideas, or objects, and compare or contrast. They may choose contextual computer games that make you and think. They may compare analogies, contextual computer games to help present what explain computer games.

Each with image. Think about the page and the message it is sending about analogies.

By using the page with computer games and different things, you can help students read about computer games, you have another idea page to compare with different things.

Competency	What are they comparing to	Message
Compare with the same level of detail	Context, which is a good level of detail	to show that computer games are the same level of detail

By comparing the computer games and analogies, you can help students learn to recognize what the message is sending. These computer games and analogies are the same level of detail.
