

Cohesion

by RJ Phillips

Halliday and Hasan (1976) identify two types of cohesion:

Grammatical cohesion, including reference, identification, ellipsis and conjunction.

Lexical cohesion, including repetition and collocation.

Halliday And Hasan Cohesion:

Cohesion in English M.A.K. Halliday, Ruqaiya Hasan, 2014-01-14 Cohesion in English is concerned with a relatively neglected part of the linguistic system its resources for text construction the range of meanings that are specifically associated with relating what is being spoken or written to its semantic environment A principal component of these resources is cohesion This book studies the cohesion that arises from semantic relations between sentences Reference from one to the other repetition of word meanings the conjunctive force of but so then and the like are considered Further it describes a method for analysing and coding sentences which is applied to specimen texts Cohesion in English Michael Alexander Kirkwood Halliday, 1976 What is the Matter with Communicative Competence? Reinhold Peterwagner, 2005 This book integrates recent findings of linguistic research into ELT Its aim is to introduce future teachers to the complex concept of communicative competence to critically analyse learners teaching learning deficiencies in the light of the requirements they are expected to meet at the school leaving exams or at university entry to offer suggestions about how to remedy these shortcomings and also to provide teaching and testing materials A Discourse Analysis of Galatians and the New Perspective on Paul David I. Yoon, 2019-04-09 In A Discourse Analysis of Galatians and the New Perspective on Paul David I Yoon outlines discourse analysis from the framework of Systemic Functional Linguistics for analyzing Paul s letter to the Galatians From this analysis he determines whether the context of situation better reflects the New Perspective on Paul covenantal nomism or a more traditional perspective legalism The first half of the book introduces the New Perspective on Paul and discourse analysis followed by a detailed model of SFL discourse analysis with respect to register and context of situation The second half is a discourse analysis of Galatians This is the first monograph length study to address the New Perspective on Paul from a linguistic approach and will as such be of great interest to scholars of Pauline Studies linguistics and theology Contrast Elisabeth Rudolph, 2012-05-02 No detailed description available for Contrast The Pragmatics of Academic Writing Nicola T. Owtram, 2010 This volume investigates to what extent existing approaches to pragmatics and discourse shed light on how the form of a text creates stylistic effects Taking a cross cultural perspective this book focuses on five key stylistic features of writing paragraph structure length and construction of sentences organisation of information in sentences relative formality of vocabulary amount of nominalisation widely seen as partly responsible for the different impressions created by academic writing in English and Italian The author develops a theoretical framework for the investigation of intuitions about stylistic differences from a contrastive point of view To this end the book gives an overview of recent scholarly approaches to writing and reading genre studies contrastive rhetoric and the notions of style and stylistics together with an assessment of several individual approaches Lexical Cohesion and Corpus Linguistics John Flowerdew, Michaela Mahlberg, 2009-01-14 Lexical cohesion is about meaning in text It concerns the ways in which lexical items relate to each other and to other cohesive devices so that textual continuity is created Traditionally lexical cohesion along with other types of cohesion has been investigated in individual texts. With the advent of corpus techniques however there is potential to investigate lexical cohesion with reference to large corpora. This collection of papers illustrates a variety of corpus approaches to lexical cohesion. Contributions deal with lexical cohesion in relation to rhetorical structure, lexical bundles and discourse signalling, discourse intonation, semantic prosody, use of signalling nouns and corpus linguistic theory. The volume also considers implications that innovative approaches to lexical cohesion can have for language teaching. This volume was originally published as a Special Issue of International Journal of Corpus Linguistics volume 11 3 2006.

Current issues in the analysis of Semitic grammar and lexicon Lutz Edzard, Translation and Corpora Karin Aijmer, Hilde Hasselgård, 2004

Ancient Egyptian Literature Antonio Loprieno, 2023-12-28 This volume deals with the development and the characteristics of the literature of Ancient Egypt over a period of more than two millennia from the monumental origins of autobiography at the end of the Old Kingdom ca 2150 BCE down to the latest literary compositions in Demotic during the Graeco Roman period 300 BCE 200 CE. This book the result of an international co operation among more than twenty scholars is divided into sections devoted to the definition of literary discourse in Ancient Egypt, the history and genres of these texts, their linguistic and stylistic features and the image of Ancient Egypt as displayed in later literary traditions of the Mediterranean world: Greek, Coptic, Arabic. With over thirty chapters, this volume provides an interdisciplinary account of current research in one of the methodologically most advanced fields of Egyptology.

Cohesion in English M. A. K. Halliday, Ruqaiya Hasan, 1979

Cohesion Thomas Christiansen, 2011

This book represents a fresh look at cohesion, the point of departure being Halliday and Hasan's seminal Cohesion in English which is examined in depth as are other notable approaches to cohesion such as Hoey's Patterns of Lexis in Text. It also compares different studies of relevance to cohesion from other areas of linguistics such as generative grammar, Functional Sentence Perspective (FSP) and corpus linguistics. In this way, this work extends discussion of cohesion beyond the realms of systemic linguistics to include a broader spectrum of approaches including research into languages other than English. The main focus however is on varieties of English and on general and specialised discourse types. Rather than limiting itself to the text as product, the manifestation of a discourse, this book looks at cohesion from the wider perspective of discourse seen as an interactive process. Consequently, different sociolinguistic and cultural factors are also taken into consideration. How far is cohesion a constitutive feature of text? What is the precise link between cohesion and coherence? What specific role does discourse have in phenomena such as anaphora? Do such things as cohesive universals exist across languages? How far do socio-cultural or discourse specific conventions contribute to the type and degree of cohesion present in a text?

repetition in discourse it is an aspect of cohesion which creates difficulty for raters when assessing L2 academic written discourse Current computer aided lexical cohesion analysis frameworks built for large scale assessment fail to take into account where repetitions occur in text and what role their patterns play in organizing discourse This study intends to fill this gap by applying a sequential mixed method design drawing on Hoey s 1991 theory based analytical tool devised for the study of the text organizing role of lexical repetition and its refined version K roly s 2002 lexical repetition model which was found to be capable of predicting teachers perceptions of argumentative essay quality with regard to its content and structure It first aims to test the applicability of the previous models to assessing the role of lexical repetition in the organization of other academic genres then propose a more complex computer aided analytical instrument that may be used to directly assess discourse cohesion through the study of lexical repetition In order to test the applicability of K roly s model on other academic genres two small corpora of thirty five academic summaries and eight compare contrast essays were collected from English major BA students at E tv s Lor nd University The lexical repetition patterns within the corpora were analyzed manually in the case of the summaries and partially with a concordance program in the case of the compare contrast essays The findings revealed that in both genres lexical repetition patterns differed in high and low rated texts Given that in its present form the model cannot be used on large scale corpora in the third stage of the research a computer aided model was designed for large scale lexical repetition analysis First by employing the theoretical empirical and methodological results gained from the corpora several new analytical steps were proposed and built into a modular format Next in order to better align the new computer aided analysis to its manual version parallel processes were identified between the new analytical model and an existing sociocognitive framework The newly proposed model may help teachers to assess discourse cohesion or can be used as a self study aid by visualizing the lexical net created by semantic relations among sentences in text
