Schellekens, 2009-11-18 Financial protection against the cost of illness and inclusion of vulnerable groups will require better mobilization and use of private means Private voluntary health insurance already plays an important role in mobilizing additional resources to the health sector and protecting against the catastrophic cost of illness in some countries This review explores the context under which private voluntary health insurance could contribute to an improvement in the sustainability of the health sector and financial protection in other countries Limited Insurance Portability and Job Mobility Jonathan Gruber, Brigitte C. Madrian, 1993 The link between health insurance and the workplace in the U S has led to concern over the possibility of insurance induced reductions in job mobility or job lock Designing health insurance reforms which retain employer based insurance coverage but mitigate the extent of job lock requires an understanding of the policy dimensions to which job lock is most receptive We study a policy of limited insurance portability which has been adopted by a number of states and the federal government over the last 20 years These continuation of coverage mandates grant individuals the right to continue purchasing health insurance through their former employers for some period of time after leaving their jobs We find that the passage of these mandates caused a significant increase in the job mobility of prime age male workers This suggests that a sizeable share of job lock arises from short run concerns over portability rather than from long run problems Insurance World, 1894 Financing Health Care Mingshan Lu, 2008-02-11 Discussing international issues of health care financing this is the first volume in a completely new public health book series edited by the Institute of Health Economics IHE in Edmonton Canada Starting with various funding methods the reference also features sections on different health care payment and purchasing mechanisms as well as equity issues Of interest to medical and allied health professionals and those working in health care industries insurance and economics Insurance Post of Chicago, 1908 Insurance Within the Firm Luigi Guiso, Luigi Pistaferri, Fabiano Schivardi, 2001 Insurance, 1919 The Business of Insurance Howard Potter Dunham, 1912 Insurance Newspaper, 1903 Insurance Opinion, 1896
