In the Light of Evolution National Academy of Sciences,2017-01-01 Biodiversity the genetic variety of life is an exuberant product of the evolutionary past a vast human supportive resource aesthetic intellectual and material of the present and a rich legacy to cherish and preserve for the future Two urgent challenges and opportunities for 21st century science are to gain deeper insights into the evolutionary processes that foster biotic diversity and to translate that understanding into workable solutions for the regional and global crises that biodiversity currently faces A grasp of evolutionary principles and processes is important in other societal arenas as well such as education medicine sociology and other applied fields including agriculture pharmacology and biotechnology The ramifications of evolutionary thought also extend into learned realms traditionally reserved for philosophy and religion The central goal of the In the Light of Evolution ILE series is to promote the evolutionary sciences through state of the art colloquia in the series of Arthur M Sackler colloquia sponsored by the National Academy of Sciences and their published proceedings Each installment explores evolutionary perspectives on a particular biological topic that is scientifically intriguing but also has special relevance to contemporary societal issues or challenges This tenth and final edition of the In the Light of Evolution series focuses on recent developments in phylogeographic research and their relevance to past accomplishments and future research directions Biogeography James H. Brown, Arthur C. Gibson, 1983 Biogeography Second Edition combines ecological and historical perspectives to show how contemporary environments earth history and evolutionary processes have shaped the distributions of species and the patterns of biodiversity It illustrates general patterns and processes using examples from different groups of plants and animals from diverse habitats and geographic regions Written primarily for use in undergraduate and graduate courses in plant and or animal geography the book serves as a general synthesis and reference as well

Essentials of Landscape Ecology Kimberly A. With, 2019-07-01 Human activity during the Anthropocene has transformed landscapes worldwide on a scale that rivals or exceeds even the largest of natural forces Landscape ecology has emerged as a science to investigate the interactions between natural and anthropogenic landscapes and ecological processes across a wide range of scales and systems from the effects of habitat or resource distributions on the individual movements gene flow and population dynamics of plants and animals to the human alteration of landscapes affecting the structure of biological communities and the functioning of entire ecosystems to the sustainable management of natural resources and the ecosystem goods and services upon which society depends This novel and comprehensive text presents the principles theory methods and applications of landscape ecology in an engaging and accessible format that is supplemented by numerous examples and case studies from a variety of systems including freshwater and marine scapes
