Computational Genetic Regulatory Networks: Evolvable, Self-organizing Systems Johannes F. Knabe, 2012-08-14 Genetic Regulatory Networks GRNs in biological organisms are primary engines for cells to enact their engagements with environments via incessant continually active coupling In differentiated multicellular organisms tremendous complexity has arisen in the course of evolution of life on earth Engineering and science have so far achieved no working system that can compare with this complexity depth and scope of organization Abstracting the dynamics of genetic regulatory control to a computational framework in which artificial GRNs in artificial simulated cells differentiate while connected in a changing topology it is possible to apply Darwinian evolution in silico to study the capacity of such developmental differentiated GRNs to evolve In this volume an evolutionary GRN paradigm is investigated for its evolvability and robustness in models of biological clocks in simple differentiated multicellularity and in evolving artificial developing organisms which grow and express an ontogeny starting from a single cell interacting with its environment eventually including a changing local neighbourhood of other cells These methods may help us understand the genesis organization adaptive plasticity and evolvability of differentiated biological systems and may also provide a paradigm for transferring these principles of biology's success to computational and engineering challenges at a scale not previously conceivable

Management and Organizational Behaviour, The State and Civil Society Nicole Bolleyer, 2018-10-25 State regulation of civil society is expanding yet widely contested often portrayed as illegitimate intrusion Despite ongoing debates about the nature of state voluntary relations in various disciplines we know surprisingly little about why long lived democracies adopt more or less constraining legal approaches in this sphere in which state intervention is generally considered contentious Drawing on insights from political science sociology comparative law as well as public administration research this book addresses this important question conceptually theoretically and empirically It addresses the conceptual and methodological challenges related to developing systematic comparative insights into the nature of complex legal environments affecting voluntary membership organizations when simultaneously covering a wide range of democracies and the regulation applicable to different types of voluntary organizations Proposing the analytical tools to tackle those challenges it studies in depth the intertwining and overlapping legal environments of political parties interest groups and public benefit organizations across 19 long lived democracies After presenting an innovative interdisciplinary theoretical framework theorizing democratic states legal disposition towards or their disinclination against regulating voluntary membership organizations in a constraining or permissive fashion this framework is empirically tested Applying Qualitative Comparative Analysis QCA the comparative analysis identifies three main paths accounting for the relative constraints in the legal environments democracies have created for organized civil society defined by different configurations of political systems democratic history their legal family and voluntary sector traditions Providing the foundation for a mixed methods design three ideal typical representatives of each path Sweden the UK and France are selected for the in depth study of these legal environments long term evolution to capture reform dynamics and their drivers that have shaped group and party regulation over many decades

Distributed Decision Making Jens Rasmussen, Berndt Brehmer, Jacques Leplat, 1991-08-26 Frequently and often inappropriately decision making in the work environment has been analyzed and modeled in terms of isolated decisions made by one person In reality decision making is a continuous interpersonal process usually involving several decision makers aiming at dynamic and cooperative control of the state of affairs at work Based on original contributions from researchers and research teams this book provides an urgently needed cognitive approach to models of distributed decision making exploring the basis for design of decision support systems in various complex collective modern work environments It identifies the state of the art of modeling distributed decision making and the problems imposed by modern high tech systems A also formulates promising research avenues
