European Metropolitan Commercial Real Estate Markets Ed F. Nozeman, Arno J. Van der Vlist, 2014-07-16 Metropolitan commercial real estate markets are highly influenced by global forces the regional economy and institutional behaviour While descriptions of regional commercial real estate markets are well known and widespread in academic literature this monograph goes beyond that in explaining the dynamics in and variations between European metropolitan markets By comparing those markets on relevant indicators and through extensive data analysis a number of explaining factors is revealed Contributions on specific metropolitan markets with different positions within the real estate cycle illustrate not only the characteristics of the local economy and its institutions but also urgent issues such as battling vacancy changing retail hierarchy or managing obsolescence

Planning for Retail Development Clifford Guy, 2006-10-11 Written by a leading expert in the field this is the first thorough critical review of retail planning policy in Britain including Scotland and Wales It covers recent changes in government policy and guidance and examines retail policy within a broader economic and social context Planning for Retail Development explains key events and debates in the evolution of retail planning policy at central and local government levels since the 1960s and draws contrasts between the 1980s a period in which retail developers were encouraged by central government to expand away from town centres and the more recent emphasis on protection and promotion of town centres as the most appropriate location for new development The book develops a critical evaluation of past and present retail planning policies based upon analyses of retailers objectives and of typical consumer shopping behaviour Relationships between retail planning and wider societal concerns including sustainable development social inclusion and urban regeneration are also examined and analysed and guidelines for future policy objectives and content are drawn

The Post-Socialist City Kiril Stanilov, 2007-08-13 In the large body of literature produced during the last fifteen years on the transformation of Eastern European societies after the fall of communism studies investigating changes in urban form and structure have been quite rare Yet a profound reorganization of the manner in which urban space is appropriated has taken place impacting the life of over 200 million urban residents in the region The patterns of spatial organization which have been established during this fairly limited but critical timeframe are likely to set the direction of future urban development in CEE cities for a long time This book focuses on the spatial transformations in the most dynamically evolving urban areas of post socialist Central and Eastern Europe linking the restructuring of the built environment with the underlying processes and forces of socio economic reforms We hope that the detailed accounts of the spatial transformations in a key moment of urban history in the region will enhance our understanding of the linkages between society and space adding to the knowledge that is needed for resolving the difficult challenges facing cities throughout the globe in the beginning of the twenty first century
