implications in political and social life As Jason Resnikoff shows the term automation expressed the conviction that industrial progress meant the inevitable abolition of manual labor from industry But the real substance of the term reflected industry's desire to hide an intensification of human work and labor's loss of power and protection behind magnificent machinery and a starry-eyed faith in technological revolution The rhetorical power of the automation ideology revealed and perpetuated a belief that the idea of freedom was incompatible with the activity of work From there political actors ruled out the workplace as a site of politics while some of labor's staunchest allies dismissed sped up tasks expanded workloads and incipient deindustrialization in the name of technological progress A forceful intellectual history Labor's End challenges entrenched assumptions about automation's transformation of the American workplace A People and a Nation Study Guide, Volume 2, Fifth Edition Norton, 1998-12
