

3. The formula for total product costs is:

Total Product Costs

$$= \text{Direct Materials} + \text{Direct Labor} + \text{Factory Overhead}$$

Since we already have direct materials, direct labor and factory overhead, we can now compute for total product costs:

Direct Materials	50,000
Direct Labor	52,000
Factory overhead	95,000
Total Product Costs	197,000

4. The formula for total period costs is:

Total Period Costs

$$= \text{General/Administrative Expense} + \text{Selling Expenses}$$

In this problem, there are no selling expense given (unless office salaries function as marketing or selling department) Nevertheless, to get total period costs, we just need to add the remaining general and

- b. Expense

Just as discussed in this book, expense category of manufacturing business consists (1) Cost of Goods Sold and (2) Operating Expenses. Therefore, we need to compute these variables before solving for the total expense.

(1) Cost of Goods Sold - In merchandising business, we usually get cost of sold by adding beginning inventory and purchases then comparing it to the ending inventory. However, in manufacturing business, it is more accurate when we use the given costs of production as basis for solving this. Since we already have the total product costs, we can get the estimated cost per unit produced because it was stated that an output of 5,000 units was produced for the entire year. Then, we can solve for COGS by multiplying Cost per Unit to the number of units sold during the year. Remember, we do not recognize expenses unless the related revenue is recognized during the period. (Matching Principle) Therefore, we must not recognize the cost of production for the unsold units.

	Total Product Costs	197,000
Cost of Goods Sold	150,000
Operating Expenses	47,000
Total Expense	197,000
