

BDI (Becks' Depression Inventory) Assessment for children:

CHILDREN'S DEPRESSION SELF-RATING SCALE:

Instructions:

For children between the ages of 8 and 14, this self-rating measure was created. It should be conveyed to children that using the scale will allow them to express their true feelings. Give the scale to the children with the instructions listed below. Therapists may read the statements aloud to children who are having trouble reading any of the things. This is done in a neutral voice that doesn't suggest a preference for what they should hear.

Children are instructed to read these phrases and identify the one that most accurately captures their feelings throughout the previous week. Answers from children should be as truthful as possible. The right response is to express how one truly feels.
