

11.01 Pry the plastic cover of the intake manifold, which protects the generator, from the engine

11.02 Using a dial indicator to measure the piston protrusion

11.03 Locate the new cylinder head gasket over the engine correctly to the same face as the old one. Position the new gasket, and proceed to step 10.

11 If the head has been treated, or if the pistons have been fitted, it is likely that a head gasket of different thickness to the original will be needed. Check whether a mark on the base of the treated piston protrusion above the cylinder head gasket surface the distance that it will rise the same amount as the dial of the dialer.

12 To measure the piston protrusion, attach a dial indicator (D) to the top face cylinder head gasket using base of the cylinder head, and use the gauge in the gasket using face (see illustration).

13 Test the gauge probe above for 1 minute, then set the graduated scale to read with the piston protrusion. Use the maximum height, increase and record the maximum piston protrusion as T1.

14 Repeat the measurement for the remaining pistons, and record the results.

15 If the measurements differ from piston to piston, take the highest figure, and use this to determine the thickness of the head gasket required (see the specifications at the start of the Chapter).

Preparation for refitting

16 The mating faces of the cylinder head and engine block must be perfectly clean before refitting the head, use a heat gun to remove varnish to remove all traces of gasket and carbon, and clean the piston crowns.

17 The new head gasket has rubber coated surfaces, which could be damaged from steel wire or debris left in a water jacket.

18 Use particular care when cleaning the piston crowns, as the soft aluminium alloy is easily damaged.

19 Make sure that the carbon is not allowed to enter the oil and water passages. This is particularly important for the lubrication system, as carbon could block the oil supply to the engine's components. Using adhesive tape will clean, over the water, oil and fuel lines in the cylinder block.

20 To prevent carbon entering the gap between the pistons and bore, show a little grease in the gap. After cleaning each piston, use a small brush to remove all traces of grease and carbon from the gap. Test tape along the cylinder with a clean rag. Clean all the pistons in the same way.

21 Check the mating surfaces of the cylinder block and the cylinder head for nicks, deep scratches and other damage, refer to the later in paragraph 10. If a dip is too deep to remove carefully with a file it is necessary, machining may be the only alternative to a new one.

22 If a passage of the cylinder head gasket surface is damaged, use a straight edge to check it for distortion. Refer to Part 2 of the Chapter 7 procedure.

23 Ensure that the cylinder head bolt holes in the waterways are clean and free of all sludge or scale in any of all of the bolt holes. This is most important in order that the correct seal tightening torque can be applied, and to prevent the possibility of the block being cracked by hydraulic pressure when the bolts are tightened.

Refitting

24 Make sure the timing is off 180° at 0° BTDC, see Section 6. The oil sump and any oil or carbon residue within the cylinder head is lifted.

25 To guide the cylinder head into position, screw the long studs into the end cylinder head bolt locations on the marked side of the cylinder block. As an alternative to the studs, use old cylinder head bolts with their heads cut off, and use cut in the ends to enable the bolts to be tightened.

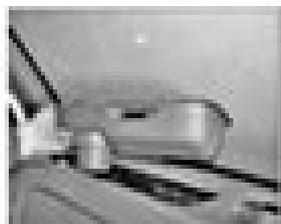

26 Ensure that the cylinder head mounting flanges are in place in the cylinder block, then fit the new cylinder head gasket over the flanges (see illustration). The gasket can only be fitted one way, with the bolt to determine the gasket thickness of the head (see illustration) in 2/3. Use care to avoid damaging the gasket's rubber coating.

11.04 Remove the timing

11.05 ... and disconnect the timing connector from the opposite lighter

11.06 Lift out the timing belt from the top of the block

11.07 Check the four bolts (marked) securing the timing belt mounting bracket to the block

11.08 Remove the retaining clips and show the four studs that are the additional only holder from the mounting bracket

11.09 ... then remove the bracket

27 Working through the timing belt pulleys, undo the four bolts securing the bracket and mounting bracket to the face (see illustration).

28 Remove the retaining clips and show the four studs that are the additional only holder from the mounting bracket. Then remove the bracket (see illustration).

29 Disconnect the wiring connector from the power point.

30 Lift off the two covers and remove the four upper retaining bolts (see illustration).

31 Undo the six bolts securing the face (see illustration) (shown in the illustration) to the mounting base (see illustration).

32 Remove the retaining clips and remove the bracket covers from the face on both sides (see illustration).

33 Using a small screwdriver, remove the four studs from the face on both sides (see illustration).

11.09a Lift off the two covers

34 Undo the four upper retaining bolts from the face on both sides (see illustration).

11.09b ... and remove the four upper retaining bolts

11.01 Tightening sequence for the cylinder head bolts

11.10 Undo the six bolts (marked) securing the timing bracket to the block

11.11 Remove the retaining clips and remove the bracket covers from the face on both sides

11.12 Using a small screwdriver, remove the four studs from the face on both sides
