The Bush Administration released the results of its Nuclear Posture Review in January 2002 That study states that the United States will no longer base its nuclear planning on the need to address the Russian threat Instead it will develop forces with the capabilities needed to address a range of threats from unspecified countries Furthermore offensive nuclear weapons will combine with missile defenses and conventional strike weapons to deter and defeat potential threats The United States will reduce its nuclear forces to between 1 700 and 2 200 operationally deployed warheads and will place many of the warheads removed from deployed forces in reserve as part of a responsive force It will also strengthen its nuclear infrastructure so that it can be more responsive in sustaining the reliability of U S nuclear forces in the future This study has raised numerous issues such as how deep the reductions in nuclear forces will actually be the potential need for new nuclear weapons in the future and the role of nuclear weapons in U S defense and national security policy p 1      U.S. Nuclear Weapons Policy George Bunn,Christopher F. Chyba,2007-08-29 What role should nuclear weapons play in today s world How can the United States promote international security while safeguarding its own interests U S Nuclear Weapons Policy informs this debate with an analysis of current nuclear weapons policies and strategies including those for deterring preventing or preempting nuclear attack preventing further proliferation to nations and terrorists modifying weapons designs and revising the U S nuclear posture Presidents Bush and Clinton made major changes in U S policy after the Cold War and George W Bush s administration made further more radical changes after 9 11 Leaked portions of 2001 s Nuclear Posture Review for example described more aggressive possible uses for nuclear weapons This important volume examines the significance of such changes and suggests a way forward for U S policy emphasizing stronger security of nuclear weapons and materials international compliance with nonproliferation obligations attention to the demand side of proliferation and reduced reliance on nuclear weapons in U S foreign policy      Nuclear Posture Review United States.
