the theoretical models The key features of each of the software packages Ch 1 Guidelines for reporting SEM research Ch 16 www.routledge.com/9781138811935 which provides access to data sets that can be used with any program links to other SEM examples related readings and journal articles and more Reorganized the new edition begins with a more detailed introduction to SEM including the various software packages available followed by chapters on data entry and editing and correlation which is critical to understanding how missing data non normality measurement and restriction of range in scores affects SEM analysis Multiple regression path and factor models are then reviewed and exploratory and confirmatory factor analysis is introduced These chapters demonstrate how observed variables share variance in defining a latent variables and introduce how measurement error can be removed from observed variables Chapter 7 details the 5 SEM modeling steps including model specification identification estimation testing and modification along with a discussion of hypothesis testing and the related issues of power and sample and effect sizes Chapters 8 to 15 provide comprehensive introductions to different SEM models including Multiple Group Second Order CFA Dynamic Factor Multiple Indicator Multiple Cause Mixed Variable and Mixture Multi Level Latent Growth and SEM Interaction Models Each of the 5 SEM modeling steps is explained for each model along with an application Chapter exercises provide practice with and enhance understanding of the analysis of each model The book concludes with a review of SEM guidelines for reporting research Designed for introductory Confirmatory Factor Analysis J. Scott Long, 1983-09-01 Demonstrates how to use confirmatory factor analysis a model that allows researchers to specify the relationships among observed and latent variables on the basis of substantive considerations rather than mathematical convenience Confirmatory Factor Analysis Donna Harrington, 2009 Measures that are reliable valid and can be used across diverse populations are vital to social work research but the development of new measures is an expensive and time consuming process An array of existing measures can provide a cost effective alternative but in order to take this expedient step with confidence researchers must ensure that the existing measure is appropriate for the new study Confirmatory factory analysis CFA is one way to do so and in this clearly written pocket guide Donna Harrington provides social work researchers with an essential roadmap to the highlights of CFA s powers and how to harness them CFA has four primary functions psychometric evaluation of measures construct validation testing method effects and testing measurement invariance all of which Harrington makes exceedingly accessible She includes an easy to follow overview of the method step by step guides to creating a CFA model and assessing its fit and clear explanations of the requirements for using CFA as well as underscoring the issues that are necessary to consider in alternative situations such as when multiple groups are involved Real world examples screenshots from the Amos software program that can be used to conduct CFA and reading suggestions for each chapter make the material accessible for even the greenest novice This pocket guide is ideally suited for readers who plan to conduct CFA analyses and need a brief non technical introduction to the topic to get them started before getting into the more detailed and technical literature as well as readers who do not plan to conduct CFA analyses but want to be knowledgeable consumers of research literature that uses CFA
