Deductive, Abductive, or Inductive? Pick one, and explain your choice.

- All mammals have hair. Whales are mammals. Therefore, whales have hair.

Deductive: because the conclusion is 100% certain to be true based on the premises.
- Mittens are often found in colder waters. Therefore, their hair serves as insulation against the cold.

Abductive: it is a best guess based on the premises.
- In the past, strange noises coming from the attic have been caused by rodents. Therefore, the strange noise in the attic I hear now is also caused by a rodent.

Inductive: it is a prediction based on past experience. The strength depends on how many such past experiences there have been.
- If the noise is caused by a rodent, then the rodent must be removed to avoid further damage to the property. I just heard a rodent in the attic. Therefore, this rodent must be removed.

Deductive: based on the premises, this is the only conclusion we can have.
- Over the past 10 years, the stock market has consistently risen. Therefore, investing in the stock market now will yield good returns.

Inductive: it is a prediction based on past experience. Strong, because 10 years is a long time.
- The computer is not turning on. This could be due to a malfunctioning power supply.

Abductive: it is a best guess based on possible alternatives.
