The Connectivity of Innovation in the Construction

Industry Malena Ingemansson Havenvid, Åse Linné, Lena E. Bygballe, Chris Harty, 2019-04-01 The construction industry is currently experiencing accelerating developments concerning societal demands along with project complexity internationalization and digitalization In an attempt to grasp the consequences of these demands on productivity and innovation this edited book addresses how innovation is likely to take place with a more long term perspective on the construction sector While existing literature focuses on organizational discontinuity and fragmentation as the main reasons for the apparent lack of innovation in the industry this book highlights the connectivity of construction actors resources and activities as fundamental for understanding how innovation takes place Through 15 empirically grounded chapters the book shows how innovation is part of construction processes on various levels including project firm and industry and that these innovation processes are characterized by organizational and technological connectivity over time Written by European business management scholars the chapters cover empirical cases and examples from both a multi organizational and a multi international perspective in terms of covering the viewpoints of different industry actors and the contexts of several different European countries including Sweden Norway the UK Italy France Hungary and Poland By illustrating how connectivity is part of innovation processes in the creation of single product innovations of various innovations within and across projects as well as a fundamental aspect of the processes in which innovations cross nations the book provides a new angle on how to understand construction innovation and where the industry might or needs to be heading next This book is essential reading for anyone interested in construction management project management engineering management innovation studies business and management studies
