

Unit 1

Understanding Geography and Population Geographies

Introduction—What lies ahead?

As you work through this unit, during weeks 2, 3, and 4 of the course, you will:

- explore the history of geography (both human and physical), and identify several different understandings of what human geography is (and is not);
- identify key approaches to the study of human geography and related key concepts and techniques;
- identify what is meant by the idea of globalization, especially as this involves a possible lessening of the role played by the traditional geographic variable of distance;
- identify human geographic approaches to the study of human and nature relationships, and explore human impacts on the natural world;
- explore the geography of human populations; and
- explore world regional geography with particular focus on Africa.

Assigned reading

Read chapters 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of the required textbook.

Learning objectives

When you have completed this unit, you should be able to:

- discuss what human geography is and how the study of human geography is relevant to today's world;
- identify trends and selected details of the history of geography and of human geography;
- identify important geographers from Greek scholars through to the present, and describe their contributions;
- identify changing approaches to the study of geography and human geography;
- outline six fundamental philosophical options to the study of human geography (empiricism, positivism, humanism, Marxism, feminism, and postmodernism), identify relevant geographers, debate the relative merits of each option, and identify associated concepts and techniques;
- distinguish between the three types of regions — formal, functional and vernacular;
- discuss the central role played by maps in geographic teaching and research;
