See your home, your life for what they really are. Need less and do more. Cultivate meaningful relationships. Be more in tune with yourself in a meditative space. Stop shopping as a form of therapy. Stop wasting money. Restore clarity. FIND WHAT YOU REALLY VALUE. When you have inner clutter, it expands to your environment. So when you live in a clean and soothing environment, it can only benefit your inner life. Don't let the word minimalism scare you. Minimalistic living is not about getting rid of modern advancements and living in the stone age. It's only about keeping things that are useful, meaningful, and add value to your life. While it does not place importance on material things and lavish living, minimalism is also not about denying yourself of the things you need. The guide is divided by different rooms and topics to make it easy and practical to refer to: Entryway, Kitchen, Living Room, Bathroom, Bedroom, Children's Rooms, Teen Rooms, Garage, Basement, Attic, Garden, Office, Computer, Technology, Closets, Mail, Sentimental Objects, Photos, Cards, Letters, Music, People. This book also helps you recognize clutter, declutter, clean, organize your home room by room, sell your things for profit, shop for a minimalist wardrobe, get your family on board, declutter digital content and computer files, go car-free or car-lite, surround yourself with people who add value to your life, maintain your space once you've minimized. Living with less is the first step to a peaceful mind. It makes space for the new to come in. Buy the book, put it into practice, and welcome positive change into your life now.

Giving in to consumerism leads to debt which has its own set of negative effects preventing us from experiencing joy and happiness. Any initial pleasure gained from buying all the latest gadgets to keep up appearances or indulging in the latest fashion trends to look stylish is short-lived. Learning how to detach from your materialistic possessions provides you with long-term freedom as well as many other additional benefits. While the initial process may seem daunting, getting into the habit of sorting and minimizing on a regular basis not only frees up time for more enjoyable activities with those you love but can also relieve you of financial burdens. Choosing a minimalist lifestyle has more advantages than disadvantages and we will explore these in greater detail. As you embrace each new technique you'll begin to feel a greater sense of freedom and joy flowing into your life. You'll have more control over your home and living spaces, allowing you to concentrate on those you love, doing the things that matter most. Visually, minimalism presents itself as being organized and free from clutter. Once you've tried to cut back and you begin to feel the overall effects and benefits of minimalism, you'll never want to go back to a home that's jam-packed with all the bells and whistles again. You'll realize that you can get by with much less than you ever imagined and this will create a home where everything has a place where it belongs, making life simpler and easier for all. You'll find that your anxiety levels are reduced and feelings of genuine peace and harmony will easily flow into your home, touching the lives of all who live there in a positive way. While the journey to creating the ideal minimalist home may take quite a while, the benefits are long-lasting. Getting into the habit of cutting back and scaling down on all your stuff may be one of the most important choices you ever make.

Minimalism - Living in a Small and Clutter-Free Environment Philcar Faunillan, John Davidson, 2015-02-18 Table of Contents

Introduction Chapter 1 Own Less Live Best Intentionality for Minimalist Lifestyle Chapter 2 Benefits of Minimalism Chapter 3 Getting Your Life Back Becoming a Minimalist Other Ways to Maximize Life Minimalism in Homes Conclusion Author Bio Publisher Introduction Minimalism is a way of living that cuts the gluttony surrounding our world. It is the exact opposite of what we see in ads, what we hear on the radio or what commercials air on TV. It contrasts what our society has etched on our minds regarding the claimed importance of accumulating stuff. It tells us to dismiss ourselves from consumerism instead of priding ourselves for all our material possessions, the clutter in our environment, the skyrocketing debts and an abundance of infinite distractions. People are joining the craze of the material world and we are left with a meaningless one. People are crazy over lots of stuff with closets full of clothes, racks full of shoes, garages stacked with useless gears, basements cluttered with boxes of what seems like hoarding of old items. They are living the typical life, working hard to make good money, spend a great chunk on it to pay for mortgage, buy fancy clothes and keep up with friends who have luxury cars or get a hand of cool technology which are seen as bragging rights. It is hard to see and realize that we do not need any of these and that life is more meaningful when there are no people to impress that we do not have to spend so much on stuff we don't need just to make us happy and that a rise in pay wouldn't necessarily mean a rise in cost of living. It takes a turning point to make people aware that they are losing themselves over their material possessions. And this point could be achieved by the continuous effort of dissenters who encourage a simpler, less materialist life. Living a minimalist lifestyle means throwing out what you do not need and focus only on those that you need. We only need little to survive while still living happily. We only need the small things to keep content in our hearts. The stuff that surrounds us are only depictions of materialism and the society telling us that we have to consume more of it is just a way of luring us into consumerism. These things do not matter and do not account for our own happiness.
