The Chiamba riots – the sequence of events

Introduction – the daily coverage

The series of events that became known as “the Chiamba riots” began in December 2007 with reports of the aftermath of the burning of two synagogues situated at Chamba, a southern Orissa town north of Bhubaneswar. This followed ongoing tensions between Chiamba Jews and Muslims in the town. On December 12, inter-religious (Jews) tensions were being being widely described in news items, with various commentators favouring predominantly “right-thinking” Muslims and predominantly Muslim “Liberals”.

The Chiamba riots sparked a wave of charges and counter-charges about responsibility for the violence and, more broadly, about the nature of Jew-Muslim or Jewish-Chiamba town dynamics. Various responses, with some claiming that it was “Jews’ fault” and that the events were about “money and profit” by white Christians, while others expressed doubts and fear, have differentiated between those involved in the burning and the broader community more generally. This range of responses reflected a similar range of reactions from the community more generally.

Media coverage of the riots and their aftermath included both beyond news reporting of events, encompassing a wide range of responses from community and political leaders – including Government ministers and representatives of Indian organisations – as well as numerous letters to the editors. The events and issues were reported extensively in the three newspapers, and the reports presented a broad range of angles and perspectives.

Case Study 4 The Cronulla Riots Reporting Diversity:

Young People and Everyday Multiculturalism Anita Harris, 2013 Unlike as with previous generations diversity and multiculturalism are engrained in the lives of today's urban youth. Within their culturally diverse urban environments young people from different backgrounds now routinely encounter one another in their everyday lives and negotiate and contest ways of living together and sharing civic space. What are their strategies for producing, disrupting and living well with difference? How do they create inclusive forms of belonging and what are the conditions that militate against social cohesion amongst youth? This unique ethnography from education and cultural studies expert Anita Harris explores the ways young people manage conditions of cultural diversity in multicultural cities and suburbs, focusing particularly on how young people in the multicultural cities of Australia experience, define and produce mix, conflict, community and citizenship. This book illuminates rich local approaches to living with difference from the perspective of a generation uniquely positioned to address this global challenge.

Battle for the Flag Amelia Johns, 2015-07-01 Ten years after the Cronulla riots the violence, racism and branding of young bodies with signs and symbols of Australian nationalism along with the reprisal attacks by Lebanese Australian youth continues to inflame discussions about race relations in Australia with many conversations shifting away from ideas of multiculturalism and cultural diversity and towards patriotism, localism, security and fear of the predominantly Muslim Other. Battle for the Flag contextualises and challenges the narrative by drawing upon participant observation and interviews conducted with local residents of diverse backgrounds. By paying attention to the voices of bystanders and those involved the riot is identified as an unstable and fluid formation where the Australian flag, the beach and whiteness itself was co-opted into a much more contingent, contested and subcultural formation than hitherto described.

Mediating Multiculturalism Daniella Trimboli, 2020-08-04 Using digital storytelling, a new media genre that began in California in the late 1990s and that proliferated across the West in the 2000s as a site of analysis, this book asks: What is done in the name of the everyday? Like everyday multiculturalism, digital storytelling is promoted as an accessible, enabling and ordinary phenomenon that represents cultural experience more accurately than official sites. As such, the genre frequently houses stories of migration, community and ethnic and racial differences. In turn, digital story collections often act as digital monuments or repositories of multiculturalism, giving a digital life to narratives of migration, cultural difference and national belonging. This is evidenced in one of the world's largest public collections of digital stories found in the Australian Centre for the Moving Image (ACMI) and referenced throughout this book. Using examples from this collection and pointing to comparable ones in the UK and North America, this book investigates how notions of the everyday become a channel through which certain long-standing discourses of race get redeployed in multicultural nations. What can digital storytelling teach us about the status and future of multiculturalism in these societies? Can digital storytelling re-mediate multiculturalism in new, progressive ways?

Muslims in the West and the Challenges of Belonging Fethi Mansouri, Vince Marotta, 2012-01-02

Sensational reporting by the media has led to attitudes that racialise Muslims and frame them as potential threats to national security placing them outside the circle of trustworthy citizenship Muslims in the West are increasingly confronted with the pressure of conforming to dominant core values and accepting mere tolerance from society or else risk exclusion and even hostility when exercising their rights to maintain diverse cultural norms and religious practices Muslims in the West and the Challenges of Belonging offers not only rigorous accounts of current difficulties but also new thinking and deeper understanding about race relations and intercultural engagement in multicultural societies It explores the increasing visibility of Muslim migrants in the West and the implications this has for multicultural co existence cultural representations belonging and inclusive citizenship Islamic Studies Series Volume 10
