EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Cassava (Manihot esculenta) is a perennial woody shrub with an edible root, which grows in tropical and subtropical areas of the world and is grown in almost all parts of the Nigeria except extreme north where the amount of rainfall is not adequate to favour its production and good yield.

Over the years, only few farmers are involved in commercial Cassava production. Most farmers are merely engaged on subsistence Cassava production which hardly goes year-round. Consequently, during the planting season, the demand for Cassava is above the supply which forces the price to increase. Apart from cassava, Cassava has no other close substitute.

Cassava is always in high demand because of its nutritive value and its starch content that gives energy to the body.

Production of Cassava requires sizable land rich in fertility. Clearing of land is done either mechanically or manually.

There are some management and cultural practices applied to Cassava production. They include, weeding, mulching, staking, pest control, disease control etc.

The Cassava is harvested at the end of the year or farming season. The roots are ready for consumption or store in barns. While Cassava seeds are kept safe for next planting season.
