Gain Practical Hands-On Experience in Penetration Testing and Cyber Security

Students often feel trapped in the cycle of "I can't get a job without experience," and "I can't get experience without a job." Fortunately, there are several ways to bulk up the experience section of your resume.

Here are some of our recommended actions to gain that experience:

- Within your current job, seek out and request any security task, no matter how small
- If you work in IT, networking, software engineering, or a similar role, count it as experience
- Do the StationX practical exercises and virtual labs
- Become a teaching assistant at StationX
- Join a StationX Mastermind Group
- Networking with other security professionals through the StationX community
- Answer questions within the StationX community
- Write your own security tools, publish them and promote them in the StationX community
- Consider internships
- Try volunteering
- Go to cyber security clubs and meetups in your area or online
- Leverage your degree or college course by doing a practical thesis
- Try freelancing – consider bug bounty and sites like Upwork
- Enter capture the flag (CTF) contests
- Attend security conferences
- Participate in security conferences and groups
- Contribute to open-source projects
- Get on GitHub and share any scripts you make
- Network on social media
- Work on your personal branding – get on social media, get yourself a blog, write articles
- If you're considering a degree, choose one with a placement year in the industry
- At university/college, professors often have paid work that you can apply for
- CVEs (Common Vulnerabilities and Exposures) – discovering and disclosing security flaws
