2.) How was the Enlightenment, in many ways, an extension of the Scientific Revolution of the previous century or so? What fundamental beliefs carried on throughout both?

The Enlightenment is an extension of the Scientific Revolution as philosophes would base their thinkings off the works of Scientific revolutionary thinkers. The influence of science was the use of scientific reasoning in order to understand the world around them.

3.) Who was Bernard de Fontanelle? Why was he such a pivotal character of the Enlightenment if he never did any actual experiments or made any new discoveries?

4.) What is skepticism? How was this "New Skepticism" different from the previous century?

Skepticism in the 18th century refers to the criticism of all things religion, especially the Catholic Church. In "New Skepticism" scientists criticize God, while the previous century had done scientific study while having the works coexist alongside God.

5.) Who was Pierre Bayle? What was his attitude towards religion?

Pierre Bayle was a Protestant known for leading criticisms against the Catholic "superstitions".
