Abstract: This paper considers the use of the decision tree approach for non-linear classification. We present the basic theory of decision trees as well as the basic algorithm for constructing them. We also discuss the use of decision trees for the classification of data. The paper presents an algorithm for the construction of decision trees for classification. The algorithm is based on the use of the decision tree approach for non-linear classification. The algorithm is based on the use of the decision tree approach for non-linear classification.

2. Decision Trees

A decision tree is a flowchart representing a hierarchical partitioning of the feature space. The decision tree consists of nodes that form a rooted tree, starting at a root node with a node called "root". Each node has one or more edges. Edges are called "branches" and are labeled with values. A node with one or more edges is called an internal or non-leaf node. All other nodes are called leaf nodes. The leaf nodes are labeled with the class labels. The decision tree is a hierarchical partitioning of the feature space into regions. The regions are labeled with the class labels. The decision tree is a hierarchical partitioning of the feature space into regions. The regions are labeled with the class labels.

Intelligence and Security Informatics Hsinchun Chen, Christopher C. Yang, 2008-05-23 The IEEE International Conference on Intelligence and Security Informatics (ISI) and Pacific Asia Workshop on Intelligence and Security Informatics (PAISI) conference series (<http://www.isiconference.org>) have drawn significant attention in the recent years. Intelligence and Security Informatics is concerned with the study of the development and use of advanced information technologies and systems for national, international and societal security related applications. The ISI conference series have brought together academic researchers, law enforcement and intelligence experts, information technology consultant and practitioners to discuss their research and practice related to various ISI topics including ISI data management, data and text mining for ISI applications, terrorism informatics, deception and intent detection, terrorist and criminal social network analysis, public health and bio security, crime analysis, cyber infrastructure protection, transportation infrastructure security, policy studies and evaluation, information assurance among others. In this book we collect the work of the most active researchers in the area. Topics include data and text mining in terrorism, information sharing, social network analysis, Web based intelligence monitoring and analysis, crime data analysis, infrastructure protection, deception and intent detection and more.

Scope and Organization The book is organized in four major areas. The first unit focuses on the terrorism informatics and data mining. The second unit discusses the intelligence and crime analysis.
