

Impulse and Momentum

Problem Solving:

1. A supersonic bomber, with a mass of 21,000 kg, departs from its home airbase with a velocity of 400 m/s due east. What is the jet's momentum?
2. Now, let's assume the jet drops its payload and has burned up most of its fuel as it continues its journey to its destination air field.
If the jet's new mass is 16,000 kg, and due to its reduced weight the pilot increases the cruising speed to 550 m/s, what is the jet's new momentum?
3. A 588 N halfback is moving eastward at 9 m/s. What is their Momentum?
4. Let's assume the bomber from the previous problem, which had a momentum of 8,800,000 kg·m/s east, comes to a halt on the ground. What impulse is applied?
5. If the football halfback experienced a force of 800 N for 0.9 seconds to the north, determine the impulse.

Cognitive and Metacognitive Problem-Solving Strategies in Post-16 Physics Ronald Mazorodze, Michael J. Reiss, 2019-09-20 This book reports on a study on physics problem solving in real classrooms situations Problem solving plays a pivotal role in the physics curriculum at all levels However physics students performance in problem solving all too often remains limited to basic routine problems with evidence of poor performance in solving problems that go beyond equation retrieval and substitution Adopting an action research methodology the study bridges the research practical divide by explicitly teaching physics problem solving strategies through collaborative group problem solving sessions embedded within the curriculum Data were collected using external assessments and video recordings of individual and collaborative group problem solving sessions by 16 18 year olds The analysis revealed a positive shift in the students problem solving patterns both at group and individual level Students demonstrated a deliberate well planned deployment of the taught strategies The marked positive shifts in collaborative competences cognitive competences metacognitive processing and increased self efficacy are positively correlated with attainment in problem solving in physics However this shift proved to be due to different mechanisms triggered in the different students
