

Tanker Chartering

The general impression of a tanker is a huge vessel steaming from the Middle East to consumer countries full of crude oil to be refined. But the tanker trade is much larger and much more complex than that. Crude oil is just a part of it, a large part, but there are many other elements.

Crude oil is carried in very large crude carriers, or VLCCs, as well as in Supertankers, LR2s and Panamax tankers. This book explains the characteristics of each type and their typical trades. It also details other tanker trades. These include clean products such as petrol or gasoline, diesel, paraffin, jet fuels and all the other refined products.

Oil is also refined into elements called chemical feedstocks where clean fuels such as naphtha is turned into everyday chemicals and plastics. These end products are carried around the world in chemical carriers. There are also gas carriers which are a branch of the tanker sector. These carry natural gas and liquefied gas. As well as the ships and the trades, Tanker Chartering describes types of employment and the relevant contracts.

The book is aimed at those who wish to start as tanker brokers but will also be useful for those who wish to increase their existing knowledge of the shipping industry beyond such areas as dry cargo, ship sale and purchase or the ports sector.
