Bleeding of Power Steering System

△ Fluid

This is an example image

Location	Points of application	Kinds	Quantity
1	Power steering oil tank	Automatic transmission fluid (DEXRON or DEXRON II type)	Fiber cap dipstick between MIN and MAX

CAUTION △

Do not keep the steering wheel turned fully to the left or right for more than fifteen seconds when the engine is running, as this can cause the power steering oil pump to seize up.

- Pour fluid into power steering oil tank 1 up to the inner part of strainer 2.
- With the engine stopped, jack up the front wheels and support with jack stands. Turn the steering wheel fully left and right repeatedly. When the fluid level has dropped, add fluid to maintain the fluid level within range A.

NOTE

Check the fluid level without screwing on filter cap 3.

- Start the engine and letting it idle, turn the steering wheel fully left and right repeatedly. When the fluid level has dropped, add the fluid to maintain the fluid level within range A. Repeat these steps until the fluid level does not drop.
- If there is an abnormal noise, air is still in the system. Turn the steering wheel several times to raise fluid temperature to approximately 60 to 80°C (140 to 176°F), then stop the engine and wait for approximately five minutes.
- Lower the front wheels and turn the steering wheel several times. If there is no noise, bleeding is completed.
- When bleeding is finished, check fluid level of power steering oil tank 1, and pipe and hose connections for fluid leaks.
