The Old World Journey Eva Zetterberg Pettersson,2005

Visual Culture and Archaeology Robin Skeates,2005-12-21 This book draws on the complementary fields of visual cultural studies and interpretative archaeology to examine how successive generations transformed their visual culture to construct themselves It explores this process through an extended case study of art and social life in prehistoric south east Italy between the Upper Palaeolithic and the Bronze Age A central argument of the book is that a wide range of visually communicative artworks were consumed and produced in the cultural process Such objects range from portable artefacts to installations within sites to monumental structures in the landscape all of which were interwoven with people s bodies in the experiences of daily life and special performances More specifically it is argued that these powerful aesthetic objects were actively used by people across space and time to perceive the world around them and to reproduce their social lives They helped people to establish personal and collective boundaries identities and relationships to acquire and exercise power to promote ideologies and to contest them especially at time of social tension

The Visual Rhetoric of the Family Photo Martine Courant Rife,2005

Seeing Things Stephen Pattison,2007 Gifford Lectures series 2007 Seeing Things is a highly original book that will have appeal across humanity departments including visual studies theology art history sociology anthropology and ethics The book considers in detail the experience of perceiving visual objects from high art to everyday artefacts It looks in particular at the problems encountered with the ways we in Western culture look upon the world and things and encourages and argues for ways to look and visualise the world more critically broadly and widely Sight is one of the main ways we perceive and relate to the world and yet it is mostly assumed rather than actively reflected on Objects designated as art and the realm of aesthetics attract some active attention and reflection but most of the visible world is ignored in the context of what Pattison describes as our ordinary blindness

TM The book argues that the range of things we choose to see and value is arbitrary and limited and the ways in which we relate to things and objects are mostly crude and un nuanced Pattison argues that it is desirable to consider more person like relationships with all manner of visibly perceived objects from classical sculptures to tennis rackets If we begin to apply this person like relationship with things we transgress the Western secular and religious practice and belief that maintains that the realm of the manufactured is dead TM and so can be treated by humans exactly as they wish without consideration Pattison argues that this person like relationship does not mean re animating or re sacramentalising the world rather he argues for observation and exploration of the actual phenomenology of the object
