

- D. Definition of scarcity: the limited nature of society's resources.
- E. Definition of economics: the study of how society manages its scarce resources.

Because most college freshmen and sophomores have limited experiences with viewing the world from a cause-and-effect perspective, do not underestimate how challenging these principles will be for the student.

As you discuss the ten principles, make sure that students realize that it is okay if they do not grasp each of the concepts completely or find each of the arguments fully convincing. These ideas will be explored more completely throughout the text.

A. Principle #1: People Face Trade-offs

1. "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch." To get something that we like, we usually have to give up, or trade for, something else that we also like.
2. Examples include how students spend their time, how a family decides to spend its income, and how a nation decides to spend its resources.
3. The opportunity cost of that activity is the value of the next best alternative that is given up.
4. Scarcity of resources: the property of resources, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
5. Scarcity of goods: the property of distributing resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
6. Scarcity of time: the property of allocating resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
7. Scarcity of money: the property of allocating resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
8. Scarcity of land: the property of allocating resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
9. Scarcity of labor: the property of allocating resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
10. Scarcity of capital: the property of allocating resources properly, getting the most use from the scarce resources.
